Washington Prepares Gala Truman Welcome

"ONE FOR THE BOOKS"—President Truman holds up for the benefit of the throng which turned out to greet him at St. Louis yesterday a copy of The Chicago Daily Tribune published early election night with the headline, "Dewey Defeats Truman." At the left is Postmaster Bernard F. Dickman, of St. Louis.

Triumphant President Returns Today 'Without Malice'; Third Term 'Out'

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Victorious Harry Truman marches in triumph back to Washington today to toss a 1948-model New Deal program at the next Congress.

And returns still straggling in from Tuesday's amazing election made it clearer than ever that the national legislature convening in January will have a new Democratic look. From that Congress he can expect more sympathy and respect, for himself and his proposals, than he ever got from the Eightieth Republican Congress he pounded all over the country.

Mr. Truman, it may be said without qualification, is not interested in a third term in the White House. He may clear the atmosphere soon by making it plain that he does not intend to seek the presidency again.

Congress has passed an anti-third term amendment which would not apply in Mr. Truman's case.

While the President travelled back from the campaign wars, the usually ho-hum national capital hung out the flags and hoisted the welcome banners for a new political champion.

Bands were rounded up for a gigantic parade when Mr. Truman gets in at 11 a. m. (EST) today. School children and the tens of thousands of Government workers were told they could have time off to offer their acclaim to the man who crossed up all the experts and handily whipped Republican Thomas E. Dewey.

And as he rode eastward by special train from his Independence, Mo., home, Mr. Truman brought no "malice" toward the man he beat or those who predicted a Dewey victory.

"The man who is defeated," he said, "feels badly enough without being crowded over."

That, he said, was what he would tell the Washington Post. He got a telegram from the paper inviting him to a turkey dinner at which pollsters, political writers and radio commentators would munch "breast of tough old crow."

After weeks of grueling campaigning, hundreds of speeches and thousands of miles of travel, the Chief Executive still hadn't run down. His momentum produced more talks to crowds at railroad stations along his route. He thanked the people who helped elect him.

Now there was no need to slap at Dewey or take a punch at Congress.

Yet there was no complete assurance he would have his way completely with the new Congress which takes over Jan. 3.

Battered Republicans are sure to put up almost a solid front against his domestic program. For

Democrat Committeeman Change Talked in State

By M. L. ST. JOHN

Talk of Georgia obtaining a new National Democratic Committeeman more co-operative with President Truman was heard last night as the time for Gov.-Elect Herman Talmadge's inauguration was set for noon, Nov. 17.

Acting Gov. Thompson yesterday called the General Assembly into special session for 10 a. m. Nov. 16. He left the call wide open so any legislation could be considered. Talmadge asked for a brief session, lasting only long enough to consolidate the vote and inaugurate him.

It was reported that Robert Elliott, of Columbus, Talmadge floor leader in the present Legislature, might tender his resignation as Georgia's National Democratic Committeeman in order to improve this State's relations with the victorious President Truman.

In campaign speeches for Talmadge during the Summer, Elliott scathingly denounced the President. He offered no aid to the National Democratic ticket should the Presidential campaign. During Elliott's resignation, he would be replaced by some Talmadge supporter who was more friendly to the President.

While the present National Committeeman was idle, the former National Democratic Committeeman from Georgia, former Gov. Rivers, went to Washington and aided in the national campaign. The national administration is grateful to Rivers for his help, according to reports from Washington, and Rivers probably could get a high Federal appointment if he wished. However, he apparently doesn't want one.

The special legislative session week after next may consider a temporary revision of the Georgia

Building Safety Law in order to extend the enforcement deadline from Dec. 31 until the 1949 General Assembly can amend the law. Floor Leader Elliott told newsmen at Columbus this extension of time might be considered by the Legislature in special session. He saw no other business for the special session.

Talmadge, himself, said there was no emergency existing that cannot wait until the regular session of the General Assembly in January.

While carpenters began erecting platform on the State Capitol front steps for the inauguration, Col. Alex McLennan, of Atlanta, who will be Talmadge's Chief-of-Staff, announced the inauguration would take place at noon Nov. 17. A reception, to which all Talmadge supporters are invited, will be held at the Executive Mansion during the afternoon. Plan for a Governor's Ball have been cancelled, McLennan said.

Meanwhile, Rep. Steve Pace, of Americus, hailed President Truman's election as a boon to Southern farmers and predicted Dixie Congressmen would have a greater voice in national affairs. In his talk at Columbus yesterday, Pace added that he hoped Southerners could combine with others and block Truman's so-called civil rights program.

Additional election returns gave Truman 241,943 of Georgia's 398,967 votes. Thurmond received 83,790; Dewey, 6,627; Wallace, 1,756, and Watson, 671.

LATE NEWS

Ex-Model Arrested in Hollywood Marijuana Raid

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—A pretty ex-model and two men were arrested in a midnight marijuana raid by police who seized a little black book they said was filled with the names of film celebrities. Raiding officers, A. M. Barr and J. B. McKinnon, said they confiscated 46 marijuana cigarettes in the apartment where they arrested Howard Cook, 29, used car salesman; his common-law wife, Carol Dunbar, 20, ex-pin-up model, and Robert D. Allen, 29.

"Some of the actors and actresses' names in that little black book would surprise you," officer Barr said. "The book is loaded with big names and private telephone numbers."

"The names of the movie people include many that we know are marijuana addicts," the officer said.

Wife Asks $40,000 To Track Down Rivals

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—Movie color expert, Mrs. Natalie Kalmus, asked for $200,000 attorneys' fees and $40,000 expenses to track down five women she says were intimate with her husband.

Mrs. Kalmus is suing Technicolor President Herbert T. Kalmus for separate maintenance, charging he carried on an international series of romances with various women.

Attorneys for the wife asked the court to give them six months to prepare their case. Mrs. Kalmus is seeking a half-interest in her husband's $3,000,000 share of Technicolor, Inc., as well as $3,000 a month alimony pending trial.

Veterinarian Opposes Hack-Limiting Law

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla.—(INS)—St. Augustine's City Commission has passed an ordinance limiting the number of horse-drawn hacks in the city.

Only one member of the Commission—Dr. Donald F. Jackson—objected to the measure, which passed on its second reading. Commissioner Jackson is a veterinarian.

Five Die of Fumes as Fire Breaks Out in Mine

KITZMILLER, Md.—(INS)—Five miners died of smoke fumes yesterday when fire broke out at the entrance to the Nethem Coal Mine near Kitzmiller.

Rescuers wearing gas masks found the bodies about 200 feet from the shaft entrance.

One of the dead, Robert Jackson, 24, of Kitzmiller, was at the mine entrance when the fire broke out, but went in to warn the others.

Others dead were Charles Kifer, 51, of Mount Storm, W. Va., and three brothers, Herman, Clarence and Martin Keller, of Kitzmiller.

The fire broke out in a gasoline engine in the "fan house," which provided ventilation for the mine.

Smyrna Lad, 13, Hurt in Rescue of Brother

SMYRNA—(AP)—Quick-thinking George Donald Adams, 13, was proclaimed a hero here for saving a younger brother from mutilation or possible death.

A huge firecracker, called an aerial bomb, with fuse sputtering, fell under the brother, Douglas Adams, aged seven.

George dashed to the side of his brother, seized the deadly "play thing" and was in the act of throwing it away when it exploded. His hand was torn. Part of his index finger had to be amputated, but doctors think they can save the other fingers.

Both boys were burned on the legs.

The accident occurred several days ago, but the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace D. Adams, were hiding the light of the heroic son under a bushel of modesty until neighbors intervened.

6 State Convicts Taken; Bellwood Break Foiled

As guards and troopers rounded up six of the 15 prisoners who tunneled their way out of Tattall State Prison Wednesday night, prison guards wounded two Negro convicts attempting to escape from Bellwood early yesterday.

J. B. Hatchett, Assistant State Director of Corrections, said Paul Miller, Negro, under 10-year sentence for criminal assault, and Percy Lockhart, Negro, under 20-year sentence for burglary, attempted to run off from a work gang at Bellwood and were shot by guards. Their wounds were not considered serious, Hatchett said.

Three more Tattall fugitives were captured yesterday near the State Prison at Reidsville. They were E. S. Parker, serving life for murder in Floyd County; David Patillo, serving 14 to 26 years for burglary in Clayton County, and Henry C. Keller.

Emory Dukes, serving 14 to 21 years for burglary in Thomas County; Carl Waits, 15 years for robbery in Polk County, and W. G. Turner, 22 to 25 years for robbery in Fulton County, were captured shortly after the break.

Warden Robert Balcolm expressed the belief that the other 9 fugitives are still in a swamp area within five miles of the State Prison.

Reports of two men riding a freight train near Mapeville sent State Troopers rushing out on the chance they might be fugitives. The two proved to be only hoboes.

36-YEAR PROMISE—Mrs. Minta Martin, 84, and her airplane-manufacturing son, Glenn L. Martin, 62, pause in Atlanta on the last lap of a trip he promised her 36 years ago. Mrs. Martin first flew with her son in 1912.

'SENTIMENTAL JOURNEY'

Glenn Martin, Mother Pay Short Visit Here

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

A mother who had the courage and vision to tie her hat on her head and take to the air on the precarious wings of her son's homemade airplane 36 years ago was in Atlanta yesterday collecting on his pay-off promise.

Mrs. Minta Martin, 84, years old, flew into the Municipal Airport in an especially outfitted Martin "Two-O-Two" liner, had lunch and jauntily took off again for her home in Baltimore.

Her son, Glenn L. Martin, 62, famous airplane manufacturer and the oldest living airplane pioneer, explained the trip this way:

"Back in 1912 when I made my pusher biplane, the going was tough. Most people thought I was crazy, but mother believed in me and helped. I said then, 'Mother, some day we'll have a big plane and we'll make a trip together. This is the last lap of that trip.'"

The Martins, mother and son, passed through Atlanta on their return from a "sentimental journey" back to Salina and Topeka, Kan., where young Glenn first dreamed of flying, and to Santa Ana, Cal., where he built his first ship in an abandoned church building. They revisited scenes of Martin's early struggles and called upon old friends and relatives who remembered well when "that crazy Martin kid" starved himself and slaved at night to make a flying contraption.

"I always believed in him," declared Mrs. Martin, spunky white-haired semi-invalid. "And why not? I'm his mother."

If flying through the air on his bamboo, spruce and steel wire wings seemed a trifle fantastic to her, she never admitted it. "I knew he'd make something of it," she said.

To Martin, award-winning manufacturer of bombers and flying boats, "that first plane I rode in is still the finest." The slender, gray-haired plane builder has lost none of his youthful enthusiasm for flying which he demonstrated with his first plane in 1909.

"It's more exciting than ever before," he remarked, standing erect in the streamlined cabin of his "Two-O-Two." "There are the stratosphere ships and the jet jobs. The future is endlessly exciting and challenging."

The Martins' personal airliner was piloted by Col. Carl Storrie, veteran of 52 missions in World War 11, who participated in raids over Berlin and Tokyo. George Rodney came along as co-pilot and Miss Agnes McGuirk accompanied Mrs. Martin as hostess-stewardess.

Construction of a new $300,000 fireproof combination fire-signal and headquarters building at Courtland and Gilmer Streets can begin by the first of the new year.

Lloyd A. Walker, City Purchasing Agent, will advertise immediately for construction bids. The decision to expedite start of construction, authorized in the 1946 bond issue, was reached yesterday by Mayor Hartsfield and William L. Medlin, Chief of the Signal System for the Fire Department.

Robert & Company Associates, Inc., Architects and Engineers on the improvement, have completed detailed plans which have been approved.

The new station will be erected at the southeast corner of Gilmer and Courtland Streets, directly across Gilmer from the Municipal Auditorium.

The Mayor also said an agreement had been reached through

Two Negroes, one scarred with teeth marks and owning three pistols, were held early today in connection with the Sunday night slaying of a Georgia Tech student at Carrollton and an attempted assault on the youth's girl companion.

A pistol-owning Negro, whom Carrollton Police Chief Rada Thredgill identified as Charles Rufus Thomas was arrested in Lowell, a small community about 10 miles from Carrollton.

The other Negro, identified by Carrollton residents as Charlie McCann, was arrested in Carrollton.

Carrollton residents, who said they identified Thomas for law-enforcement officers, reported he had teeth marks on his wrist, scratches over most of the upper part of his body and a scar on his lip. The description fits almost exactly the description given by the young West Georgia College coed who witnessed the slaying, police said.

Reports said also the Negro's home yielded three pistols when he was arrested by Chief Thredgill.

The Negroes were whisked out of Carrollton by GBI investigators soon after their arrests presumably to be taken to Atlanta for "safe keeping." Shortly after midnight, however, neither Fulton Tower nor Atlanta City Jail had any record for such prisoners.

Chief Thredgill, reached at his office in Carrollton late last night, admitted he had arrested a Negro yesterday but refused to comment further. The Chief said, "There are too many irons in the fire now; I don't care to talk about it further." He also refused to answer questions regarding the arrest.

Sheriff B. B. Kilgore and GBI Capt. W. C. McLennan could not be reached for comment.

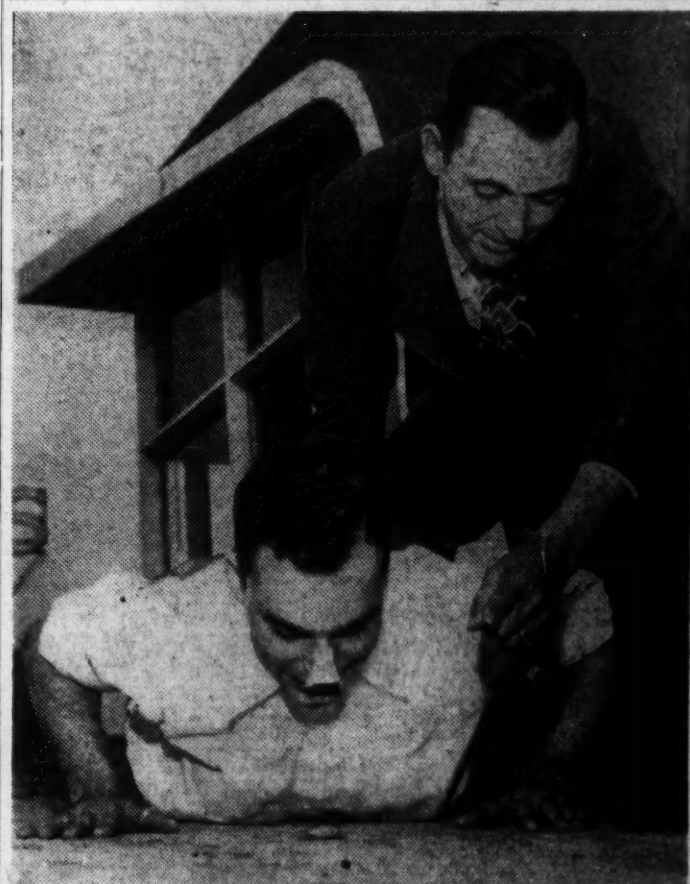

The Tech student, Buddy Stevens, 21, was shot and beaten to death Oct. 31 as he sat in front of the West Georgia College with a young girl companion.

Before he collapsed, however, young Stevens fought off the attacker until the girl could run to a nearby farmhouse for help. She escaped without injury.

Showers Due, Cooler Tonight

Better break out those umbrellas and keep a light wrap handy—the weatherman foresees scattered afternoon showers today, with a mild afternoon merging into a cooler night.

That forecast goes for both Atlanta and most of Georgia. Today's temperatures are expected to range between 60 and 70 degrees. Yesterday's low was 50; the high, 76.

Closed Shop Ban Loses
In 2 States; Wins in 3d

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Organized labor scored two major victories Tuesday when voters in Massachusetts and New Mexico rejected closed shop bans. They were partially offset by a new setback in Arizona.

The issues were among the more than 200 local proposals appearing on ballots in 35 States, many of national interest. These included: Bonuses for World War II veterans, approved in six States at an estimated cost to taxpayers of $500,000,000. Four States rejected bonus proposals and two turned down other types of benefits. Repeal of the 68-year-old Kansas prohibition amendment, which has the effect of tossing the controversial wet-dry issue into the lap of the State Legislature for final determination of the right of Kansans to take a legal drink.

Labor's success at the polls was a marked departure from the setbacks suffered two years ago when Arizona, Nebraska and South Dakota voted to prohibit the closed shop.

Militant unionists scored their most complete 1948 victory in Massachusetts where voters rejected: (A) a "right to work" measure; (B) a requirement that labor union officers be elected by secret ballot at least once a year, and (C) a prohibition against strikes except those voted by a majority of the union's membership.

New Mexico voters turned down an "open shop" amendment which would have prohibited denying employment to any person because of membership in, resignation or expulsion from a labor organization, or refusal to join a union.

In Arizona, where the State's 1946 anti-closed shop amendment is being attacked on constitutional grounds, the electorate never-

A-WING TO LONDON

Royalty Sent
Historic Gift

NEW YORK—(AP)—Four magnolia shrubs from George Washington's Mt. Vernon, Va., home were shipped by planes yesterday to Buckingham Palace, London.

The two-foot-high plants are the gift of the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association to King George VI and Queen Elizabeth.

The royal couple expressed interest in the plants when they visited Washington's home in 1939, but because of quarantine restrictions and the war their shipment abroad was held up.

The original amendment, which the Arizona State Federation of Labor contends is unconstitutional, is scheduled for hearing before the U. S. Supreme Court next week.

The six states approving bonuses for World War II vets were Indiana, South Dakota, Louisiana, Iowa, Washington and, apparently, Minnesota. The Minnesota decision will not be definite until the State Canvassing Board determines whether the proposal received the required majority of all votes cast. The Indiana proposal is not binding on the State Legislature.

Missouri, Nebraska, Wisconsin and Oregon rejected bonus proposals. North Dakota turned down a levy for a veterans' rehabilitation fund, and California apparently has rejected a veterans' tax exemption plan.

The only State besides Kansas to vote affirmatively on a liquor proposal was Washington which approved sale of liquor by the drink in hotels, restaurants and other public places with restaurant facilities.

Six other States—Arkansas, California, Colorado, North Dakota, Oregon and South Dakota—rejected various local option and sales proposals. South Dakota also decided not to require that all whiskey sold in the State be at least three years old.

Two other issues of more than local interest found:

Massachusetts declining to amend its 100-year-old law dealing with "birth control." The proposed amendment, opposed by the Catholic Church, would have made it legal for doctors to give contraceptive advice to married women whose health would be endangered by pregnancy.

South Carolina becoming the forty-eighth State to legalize divorce.

Labor Law Will Stand,
Hartley Says of Vote

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—(AP)—Rep. Fred A. Hartley, Jr., Republican, New Jersey, said here yesterday he sees no repeal of his Taft-Hartley law when the Eighty-first Congress convenes.

"Labor," he said in an interview, "is flushed with election-day victory. They are boasting because of the 54 members defeated for the House, 51 voted for the Taft-Hartley law."

"But," he said, "there are at least 270 members returned to Congress who voted for that law. And that still provides a substantial majority to protect the integrity of this law."

Hartley, who was not a candidate for re-election Tuesday, and who commented that "it would be a lot better if I saw Dewey in these headlines," continued: "No, I can't see any drastic changes in the Taft-Hartley law, because it is still workable. The only people who are complaining bitterly are the labor leadership."

"Yes," he said, "I definitely think there will be an attempt to repeal it."

"However," he added quickly, "I think there will be a lot of unhappy people in this country if

Vet Bonus Plans Win In 6 States

WASHINGTON—(AP)—World War II veterans in six States figure to share bonuses totalling an estimated $500,000,000 as a result of Tuesday's voting.

Bonus proposals won out in Indiana, Iowa, Louisiana, South Dakota, Washington and probably in Minnesota.

Voters in Nebraska, Missouri, Oregon and Wisconsin turned them down. California rejected a veterans' tax exemption plan, and North Dakota declined to vote a tax levy for a veterans' rehabilitation fund.

Here is what the six States approved:
Indiana—A $143,000,000 program which would permit an average payment of $369. It was approved by approximately four to one, but is not binding on the Legislature.

Iowa—An $85,000,000 bond issue to pay bonuses ranging from $40 to $500. The bill and bond issue previously had been passed by the Legislature. There was no organized opposition.

Thomas Spurns Query, Stands on Constitution

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Rep. J. Parnell Thomas, Republican, New Jersey, stood on his constitutional rights yesterday and refused to testify before a Federal grand jury investigating charges that he padded his congressional pay roll.

The outgoing Chairman of the House Un-American Activities Committee, who had insisted earlier on a chance to testify, appeared before the Grand Jury at the scheduled hour of 10 a. m. but left in less than five minutes. His attorney, William H. Collins, said he persuaded Thomas not to testify because it would serve "no useful purpose." He said Thomas was advised to tell the Grand Jury he would not testify on the constitutional grounds that his testimony might tend to incriminate him.

Thomas has clashed frequently with witnesses before his committee who refused to testify on constitutional grounds. Alex Campbell, Assistant U. S. Attorney General, announced meanwhile the Government had finished presenting its case, and it is now up to the Grand Jury to decide whether an indictment will be returned. No decision was expected before Monday. The Grand Jury began two weeks ago an investigation of charges that Thomas put certain individuals on the pay rolls of his congressional office but required them to "kick back" all or part of their salaries to him. According to the charges, these persons did no work.

Thomas said the investigation was a political "smear" ordered by U. S. Atty. Gen. Clark with whom he had been feuding over Communist infiltration of the government. He demanded both he and his family be given opportunity to appear before the Grand Jury on Nov. 4. He suggested the postelection date to keep the inquiry free of politics.

Thomas was re-elected Tuesday, but he will lose his committee chairmanship when the Democrats organize Congress in January.

CORONERS' OFFICES BLAMED

Getting Away With Murder in U. S. Not So Difficult, AMA Journal Says

CHICAGO—(AP)—To the axiom, "You can't get away with murder," the American Medical Association rebuts: "Several thousand do each year."

And it puts full blame on the coroners' offices in most cases. It's simply that coroners' offices often don't recognize a murder victim when they see one, the Journal of the AMA said in an editorial.

"In most States the coroner's office is so incompetent in the acquisition and interpretation of medical facts that only when murders have been witnessed or when bodies bear wounds regarded as being obviously homicidal are the deaths likely to be reported as murders," The Journal said.

The Journal made these points: 100,000 bond issue to finance bonuses ranging from $50 to $250. The plan had previously been approved by the Legislature.

South Dakota—A Constitutional amendment to permit a $30,000,000 indebtedness to provide a maximum bonus of $650 for overseas service, and $500 for State side service.

Washington—A $100,000,000 bond issue to pay bonuses based on $10 a month for State side, and $15 a month for overseas duty. The bonds are to be retired by a 10 percent tax on all retail tobacco sales.

Minnesota—A Constitutional amendment authorizing the Legislature to provide a bonus and raise money to finance it. Details are to be worked out by the Legislature. Final decision on the proposal must await a check by the State Canvassing Board to determine if it received the required majority of all votes in the State.

Missouri defeated a proposal to increase the 2 percent retail sales tax to three percent to finance a $135,000,000 bonus; Nebraska rejected a tangible property tax to finance bonuses up to $350; Oregon turned down a plan for a maximum $500 bonus, and Wisconsin voters defeated a recommendation that the State Legislature establish a 3 percent sales tax to raise $200,000,000 for bonuses.

One death of each five in the United States—approximately 300,000 each year—is known or suspected to have resulted from violence or to have occurred unexpectedly from obscure causes. In this great pool, 13,000 murders are officially recognized.

"In regions where competent medical investigations of such deaths are conducted, in 10 percent to 20 percent of all murders, the crime appears to be unwitnessed and the body does not display external wounds that can be regarded as indicative of homicide," The Journal said.

"With reasonable certainty it may be said that several thousands of murders pass unrecognized each year in the United States because of the absence of a competent agency for the acquisition of medicolegal information."

The Journal said rights of those persons unjustly accused of murder also were sometimes endangered by the functions of "the archaic office of county coroner."

It recommended establishment of medical examiner systems—a practice adopted by a few States. These systems are headed by a pathologist and staffed with physicians within the State serving on a part-time basis.

Wallgren, Truman Pal, Trails Federal Job for Him Talked

SEATTLE—(AP)—Gov. Mon C. Wallgren, President Truman's good friend and crony who never had lost an election, conceded victory yesterday to his Republican opponent.

Washington's new Governor will be Arthur B. Langlie, former Seattle Mayor who was beaten by Wallgren four years ago in the Republican's bid for a second term in the Statehouse.

Langlie was nearly 24,000 ahead on a tally of close to 650,000 votes. While Wallgren was trailing, his White House friend who twice has been his guest at the Governor's Mansion, was running 71,000 votes ahead in winning the State's eight electoral votes.

Speculation immediately arose over the likelihood of President Truman appointing Wallgren to some important national post. The Seattle Times said such an offer was "considered certain."

Chiang Calls Best Troops To Save Day

NANKING—(AP)—The Chinese Government is marshaling its best remaining front-line forces in Central China to block any Communist drive south toward the Yangtze River.

Key to the situation is Suchow, major government base only 170 miles north of the capital. It is estimated that more than 400,000 government troops are massed in that general area. These are described as mediocre but the best remaining to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek after the Communist victories in Manchuria and North China in the past month.

(The Communist radio, meanwhile, reports capture of Yingkow, South Manchurian escape port, and destruction of a government division there. The broadcast, heard in San Francisco, said Yingkow fell Tuesday and that a government transport and a score of junkies were sunk by Communist artillery as they sought to flee.) A government military spokesman says he has no confirmation of reports that Yingkow has fallen. If true, the last escape route has been cut to Hulutao, the government's other port in China.

The spokesman says the garrison of Communist-captured Mukden has been "evacuated" according to plan, but declines to say how many men escaped. Most independent reports said the bulk of the Mukden garrison, possibly 100,000 men, was captured after a brief fight.

A press report that the Government has abandoned a strong point only 90 miles west of Suchow is denied by the spokesman.

He concedes, however, that more than 25,000 Communists are operating south of the Lunghai Railway. That at several places, is nominally the government's Central China defense line. It runs through Suchow.

The spokesman insists these Reds are mostly irregulars, not advance forces bent on infiltrating and by-passing Suchow.

In addition to his military plight, Chiang Kai-shek faces a cabinet crisis brought on by economic collapse.

Hollington Tong, a government spokesman, says Pres. Chiang urged Premier Wang Wen-hao to withdraw his resignation for the third time, but adds that Wang Yun-wu, finance minister who also resigned, "is no longer functioning as a cabinet minister."

Crash of the economic-currency program of last August finds store prices jumped 300 to 700 percent and bank interest rates up to 75 percent a month.

HALLOWEEN 'PRANK'

Nude Co-Eds Spilled From 'Dorm' Beds

WINNIPEG, Man.—(UP)—Male students invaded a girls' dormitory at the University of Manitoba on Halloween, dumped the girls, some sleeping in the nude, onto the floor and covered them with soap flakes, mud and feathers. It was revealed yesterday.

Dr. A. H. Gillson, University President, said it was just a "student prank" and there was no truth to reports of a mass expulsion of the boys involved.

"It may have gone a touch too far in the matter of good taste," he said. "But it was a time performed without malice or forethought."

The Manitoban, University newspaper, said the raiders discovered a number of co-eds sleeping "sans everything."

The raid was described as an annual Halloween stunt. About 80 young men, hiding their faces in masks, participated.

A decoy lured the night watchman from his post while the other members of the raiding party crept into the dormitory. They took up strategic positions near the beds of the sleeping girls and then began dumping them when one of the "raiders" whistled the signal.

One co-ed confirmed that two girls near her were sleeping "nude."

"But it all happened so quickly I'm sure the boys didn't even notice," she said.

Police Join Hunt For Missing Girl

Police have joined in the search for Elena Moore, of 392 Woodward Ave. S. E., who left her home Monday evening to visit a girl friend and failed to return home.

The 16-year-old student at Roosevelt High School was wearing a red skirt with white blouse and brown coat. She is five feet eight inches tall, weighs 105 pounds, has blue eyes, fair complexion, and short blond hair.

Anyone with information as to her whereabouts is asked to notify the police or Mrs. Mary Moore, of 392 Woodward Ave. S. E., by calling MAin 0539.

M. S. BLACKETT
Tops in PhysicsT. S. Eliot, Literature's Nobel Winner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (UP) T. S. Eliot, former Boston bank clerk who became one of the world's most famous and least understood poets, was awarded the Nobel Literature Prize by the Swedish Academy of Literature yesterday.

At the same time, the Academy of Science announced two Nobel scientific awards: The Physics Prize to British cosmic-ray researcher, Patrick M. S. Blackett, and the Chemistry Prize to Swedish Prof. Arne Tiselius.

The three men will receive their prizes—worth about $44,500 each this year—at the Nobel Awards Festival here Dec. 10.

Eliot, a naturalized British citizen, was honored for "his remarkable achievements as a pioneer in the field of modern poetry." He is the fourth Briton to win the Literature Prize. The others were Rudyard Kipling, Playwright George Bernard Shaw and Nobelist John Galsworthy.

Blackett, who has been Professor of Physics at Manchester University for 11 years, received his prize for discoveries about cosmic radiation. He was the twelfth Briton to win the Physics Award.

Tiselius, a faculty member of Sweden's Uppsala University, received the Chemistry Award for his work in the fields of electrophoresis and absorption analysis. Four other Swedes have won the Chemistry Prize since the awards were begun in 1901.

The awards are paid from the interest on a $9,000,000 fund created by the will of the Swedish scientist, Alfred Nobel, inventor of dynamite.

9 Planes Lost; 32 Are Dead, 49 MissingBy THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The loss of nine airplanes within the past two days had accounted last night for 32 dead and 49 missing.

All those killed and 20 of those missing were the victims of crashed or lost U. S. military planes.

One was a giant B-29 bomber which tore into a mountain in England Wednesday, killing 13. A second Superfortress crashed the same day shortly after taking off in the Azores, killing 18. One person is missing and another was injured in the Azores crash.

A Navy long-range bomber with at least seven aboard was reported missing off the coast of the State of Washington. Military headquarters said "either seven or nine men" were aboard.

A Navy patrol plane carrying 12 men was reported lost in the Aleutian area Wednesday night.

A Pacific Alaska Airlines transport with 11 persons aboard was reported missing on a flight from Yakutat, Alaska, to Annette Island.

The French press agency said in Paris a French military transport with 15 aboard was missing in Indo-China on a flight from France to the Far East.

An American jet fighter crashed and burned in the center of the German resort town of Garmisch, killing the pilot.

Another U. S. fighter, an F-47, struck a tree while landing near Neuburg, Germany. The pilot was slightly hurt.

Civil Aeronautics Administration officials said in Salt Lake City a private plane with three men aboard was unreported after leaving Cody, Wyo., on a flight to Idaho.

New Allied Airport Opens in Berlin Today

BERLIN—(UP)—A new major airport, built in 13 weeks by German men and women who worked with shovels and brooms and even their bare hands, will be opened today, challenging Russian hopes that winter finally will starve the Allies out of Berlin.

In symbol of the effective completion of a job which rates with some of the heroic efforts of the war, a supply plane from the Western Zones will land at the New Tengel airfield this afternoon.

When the airport goes into full operation around Dec. 15 the potential airlift will be raised to approximately 9,600 tons a day, double the present daily peak.

The new field, in the French sector, has a 5,500-foot runway 150 feet wide, an unloading apron 2,000 feet long and 400 feet wide, and a 2,000-foot taxi-way.

Fifteen thousand Germans, half of them women, built the field under the direction of United States Army engineers.

Many thousands of others carried bricks and rubble from ruined buildings to provide foundations. This rubble was made by American and British bombing planes in the war.

The British Military Government, in a monthly report on the occupation, said that Communists in the Soviet Zone might use charges of sabotage to purge non-Communists still holding jobs there.

The pretense of combatting the black market, has seized new economic powers, the report said. With these powers, it was suggested, the Communists might use charges of sabotage to get rid of non-Communists and to cover up the numerous failures of the Russians to run their zone efficiently.

One Touch of Cellophane—Spinach Still, Says State

The State of Georgia is going to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission next Tuesday to let fresh vegetables be classified as fresh vegetables again—and not as "manufactured products."

Georgia farmers are up in the air about a recent ICC ruling that classifies fresh vegetables as "manufactured products" if they are cleaned and wrapped in cellophane. Purpose of the ICC ruling is to require such cellophane-wrapped spinach, etc., to be shipped to market in only licensed carriers—instead of riding with the ordinary raw vegetables on ordinary hired trucks.

The farmers, particularly spinach growers, protest this is inconvenient, expensive, and senseless. At the request of Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder, Asst. Atty. Gen. Claude Shaw is going to Washington to ask the ICC to repeal the ruling. Shaw argues that a vegetable isn't manufactured until it's canned in something more than cellophane, or otherwise changes its original state of being.

STUDENTS X-RAYED—Every student at Brown High School and many of their parents and teachers were given free chest X-rays by the City Health Department in the school's three-day TB campaign which ended yesterday. Harold Bradley and Barbara Boyd await their turns.

Allied Atom-Curb Plan Wins UN Assembly Nod

PARIS—(AP)—The Western Powers won overwhelming approval in the United Nations Assembly yesterday for their International Atomic Control Plan.

This first major decision in the Assembly's 1948 session was taken over bitter Russian protests. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky said there was no point in new consultations on atomic control since no basis for East-West agreement existed.

He described the Western plan as fantastic and unreal. It would leave the economic life of other states at the "tender mercies" of a control organ which would be controlled by the United States, Vishinsky charged.

By a show of hands the Assembly approved the Western plan 40 to 6. Four nations—India, South Africa, Afghanistan and Venezuela—abstained. Negative votes were cast by the Soviet bloc.

Representatives of the Western Powers held their lines against Russian attacks on the plan and defeated a Soviet counter-proposal and an Indian attempt to soften their stand.

Meanwhile, the United States proposed that the Security Council drop specific mention of sanctions against Israel from a British-Chinese proposal on Palestine. It was the first American move in the Palestine case since Tuesday's election. An authoritative source said Washington was notified in advance and "presumably" the general principles embodied in the U. S. amendments were shown to President Truman.

An Israeli spokesman attacked the proposed amendments, declaring they were the same "in spirit and effect" as the original British-Chinese resolution.

By its vote on atomic energy the Assembly:

1. Approved the majority plan for atomic control as the basis for establishing effective international regulation. This is based on pro-

Berliners Ask Outlaw Of Red Mark

BERLIN—(AP)—Berlin's City Council has asked the Western Powers to outlaw the Soviet east mark and give the western sectors of Berlin only one kind of money.

Since the currency reform of last June both the Deutsche mark—sponsored by the U. S., Britain and France—and the east mark introduced by Russia have circulated in Western Berlin.

The Council, which is anti-Communist, said in a resolution that the confusion has "led to extreme economic difficulties and social tension." It appealed to the Western Powers for relief.

U. S. Military Government officials said making the west mark Western Berlin's only legal tender has been considered but no decision has been reached.

The Russians have barred the western mark from the Soviet sector.

The western mark buys much more than the Soviet mark. The actual rate of exchange is one eastern mark for one western mark, although on paper both currencies are considered equal.

Black market dealings are made almost exclusively in western marks. Unrationed goods and luxury items are only sold for western marks.

The City Council also voted unanimously to go ahead with its plans for a city election Dec. 5. Thus far the Russians have refused to permit voting in their sector. Under the plan adopted Council members from the Soviet sector would retain their seats until elections are possible in their districts.

Instead of the pedals and other complicated controls of older models, the M-46 is guided by a "wob-

Clean Campaign Failed, No Regrets, Says Dewey

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Some of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's top advisers urged him from the start to wage the slugging kind of campaign that helped elect President Truman.

They thought it would be a grave mistake to do anything else.

But they were overruled by a majority of the "Dewey Team," including the defeated Republican candidate himself, who favored a "high level" campaign based on a "Unite America" theme.

None of the minority group is saying now that the stunning outcome of the election can be laid entirely to that decision.

But they all believe it was a big factor.

And what does Dewey think? He says:

"We waged a clean, constructive campaign and I have no regrets whatsoever."

That does not necessarily mean he would not go about it differently if he had it to do over again.

What was behind his decision to centralize on such things as "The Dignity of Man" and "The Glorious Future of America" while his Democratic opponent was talking about the Republican "Gluttons of Privilege" and the "Idiot" Eightieth Congress?

Essentially, it was a decision born of complete confidence that Dewey's election could be taken for granted.

The reasoning was that Dewey did not have to slug this time—at least not very hard.

It was a strategy deliberately copied from the 1944 campaign of the late President Roosevelt.

Then, Mr. Roosevelt's tactics were largely to ignore Dewey, his opponent.

Dewey started this campaign on that track, and throughout he never mentioned Mr. Truman by name—never even used the words

"Democratic Candidate" or "My Opponent."

The polls, as the campaign went on, convinced Dewey that his strategy was right.

But Mr. Truman kept flailing away with colorful headline phrases and fighting speeches that were drawing plenty of attention.

There were many conferences about that on the Dewey train and between trips, but the decision always was to stick pretty close to the original pattern.

Once Dewey even admonished party workers never to reply "in kind" to what he called the "vituperation and abuse" of the Democrats, "no matter what the provocation."

Four days later he came as close to letting fly himself as he ever did during the campaign.

He accused the Truman Administration of "mud slinging." He said it had "failed miserably" at home and abroad, was "openly smearing" at the idea of American unity, and had "scattered reckless abuse along the entire right-of-way from coast to coast."

But still his purpose was to highlight that with this: "That is the kind of campaign I refuse to wage."

Dewey and his aides are still trying to figure out just what happened.

One idea they mulled over was that the popular vote did not reach the 50,000,000 mark which had been forecast generally. They reasoned that possibly there was so much confidence among Republican voters that many did not bother to go to the polls. Dewey himself discounted that. The Dewey people acknowledged, moreover, that usually the bigger the vote, the bigger the Democratic tally.

Dewey, at a news conference two hours after he conceded his election, was asked:

"Do you think the American people are ready for any intellectual appeal, or that they still like corn?"

Dewey replied: "I'll have to leave you to your conclusions on that."

Dewey's advisers don't say that Truman used up the energy within 30 days and a contract can be awarded before the new year.

The President's mid-morning lead of 63,000 over Gov. Dewey was whittled to 48,000 by Southern California returns.

The 3 p. m. tabulation gave Truman 1,788,165; Dewey 1,739,886. Three congressional seats were in doubt.

In the 30 other congressional contests Democrats and Republicans broke even. In the First District, Hubert R. Scudder, Republican, was elected to succeed Rep. Clarence F. Lea, Democrat, who retired.

In the Ninth District, a Democrat, Cecil F. White, defeated Republican Rep. B. W. Gearhart; in the Tenth District, a Republican, Thomas H. Werdel, succeeded Rep. Alfred J. Elliott, Democrat, retired.

In the Twenty-third District, Clinton D. McKinnon, Democrat, defeated Republican Rep. C. K. Fletcher.

A modified local liquor option proposal was defeated by more than a million votes. A companion proposition, which would have turned over to local law officials much of the liquor control now held by the State, was defeated also.

BRACKSVILLE, Ohio (UP)—Atomic fission can replace all the present sources of energy within 20 years, Dr. William W. Davidson of the B. F. Goodrich research center predicts. He estimated the supply of uranium sufficient for 2,000 years.

In the campaign to put them across, the President will be working with a Senate that shifted from a 51 to 45 Republican edge to a 54 to 42 Democratic margin.

In the House, he was assured of a Democratic majority of nearly 100, even with five of the 435 seats still in doubt. The Democrats at that point had a net gain of 74 seats, and a total of 261

THOMPSON PAPER

Keeps 'Eye' On Talmadge

In his role as editor of a new Georgia political weekly newspaper, retiring Acting Gov. Thompson plans to keep up with the whereabouts of Governor-Elect Herman Talmadge.

Thompson's paper, "The Georgia Democrat," has carried articles reporting that Talmadge failed to keep speaking engagements for a labor convention, a teachers' convention and a Future Farmers' convention. He said his next week's issue will report that Talmadge failed to show up for a speaking engagement at a Baxley farm meeting this week.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Former Atlantans Add Zest To Huger Motor Trip

Sarah and Billy Huger have just returned from a trip they will long remember. It was a motor trip through New England which, at this season of the year, can only be appreciated by those who have seen its countryside aflame with brilliant autumn foliage against a background of fire and spruce trees, interspersed with silvery birches and beeches.

Though the scenery was glorious, there were other delightful phases of their visit such as running into old friends. For instance, after seeing their daughter, Calie, safely enrolled for her sophomore year at Wellesley College, they dropped by Harrisville, R. I., to spend the night with Jennie and Morris Phinney. Then they went to New York for a day week there. They heard, by accident, that their devoted friends, Archie and Arthur Bird, those popular former Atlantans who now reside in San Antonio, were in Philadelphia, where the latter was attending a hardware convention, so down they went for a day with the Birds.

Sarah and Billy traveled next to Franconia, N. H., one of the most charming spots in New England, where they were joined by Jennie and Morris for a week's stay at Peckett's on Sugar Hill. Leaving the Phinneys, they motored up into Maine. At Portland, they stopped long enough to have an enjoyable visit, by phone, with Mr. and Mrs. Turner Jones. Back in Boston, the Hugers were guests of the Buck Eekers, who gave a large cocktail party for them. Margaret and Fred Williams drove over from their home in Providence, to attend the party and to see their friends from Atlanta.

Mrs. Van Leer Perpetuates Tradition

Reminiscent of Mrs. L. G. Hardman's Thursday "at homes," when she was the gracious First Lady of the State, are Mrs. Blake Van Leer's Wednesday afternoon teas at her Fourth Street residence. Except that Mrs. Van Leer entertains for the faculty wives and the official family of Georgia Tech instead of all the citizens of Georgia.

Her Wednesday afternoon "at home" is a sort of tradition with Mrs. Van Leer. She inherited the delightful custom, it seems, from her mother, whose calling cards were engraved in the corner with "At home the first Friday."

Last Wednesday Mrs. Van Leer chose chrysanthemums in Tech's colors, gold and white, for the centerpiece of her lace-covered tea table, and they offset to perfection the brunet beauty of Mrs. J. W. Adams, wife of Tech's Naval ROTC Captain, who poured and who wore a modish beige and brown costume.

Stealing the spotlight at the party was the hostess' small grandson, three-month-old Wayne Tarlton Van Leer, son of Lt. Blake Wayne and Anne (Weaver) Van Leer, who are the guests of their parents until Nov. 15, when they will leave for Lt. Van Leer's new Navy station at Moffett Air Field near San Jose, Cal.

Passing Parade

Glimpsed at the final week's performance of The Stage . . . Eleanor (Mrs. Floyd) McRae and Anne (Mrs. Murdoch) Ecken arriving together. . . Mr. and Mrs. Chess Largomarsino enjoying the performance, the latter wearing an emerald-green suit with hat to match. . . Elaine and Asa Candler being shown to their seats by one of the bevy of pretty ushers dressed as Gibson Girls. . . Mrs. William S. Dennis and Mrs. George Beattie chatting with friends. . . Rebekah Scott and Eleanor Will serving as ushers. . . Virginia and Dick Brumby chatting with Mrs. T. M. Brumby. . . Sarah Cates accenting her chocolate-brown wool outfit with a gold metal belt. . . REMEDY: 'LESS MONEY, MORE GOODS'

Inflation Invites Dictator, NAM President Declares

NEW YORK—(P)—The President of the National Association of Manufacturers yesterday called inflation "the invitation to the strong man—to the dictator."

The NAM President, Morris Sayre, declared inflation can be cured only through increased production of goods for civilian use and a reduced money supply.

Sayre told the New York Rotary Club that aid to Europe and defense spending has added "new fuel to the inflationary fire."

"For the manufacturing industry," he continued, "wholeheartedly endorses every reasonable and justifiable aid to repair the shattered economies of Europe, and industry is equally committed to any and every measure to strengthen our military defenses against aggression from any quarter."

"But," he added, "we must face the fact implicit in these measures—the fact that they mean additional government expenditures and the use of production for other than the supply of civilian domestic demands."

"And to that extent, and for these reasons, they are indirectly inflationary and tend to increase prices, however otherwise desirable they may be."

It is essential, Sayre declared, the nation reduce its money supply and increase the production of goods for civilian use "to lick the inflation and stabilize prices."

Wheat Leads Grains In Price Advances

CHICAGO—(INS)—Grain futures scored further gains Thursday in fairly active post-election dealings.

Wheat continued to lead the market upward and gained 1/2 cent, with soybeans reacting partially. The 1949 delivery contracts showed the most strength in wheat.

Corn moved up as much as 3/4 cent before meeting with resistance. At the close, wheat was 1/2 to 3/4 cent higher, corn 1/4 to 1/2 cent higher, soybeans 1/4 to 1 cent up and rye 1/4 to 1/2 cent higher.

Soybean futures met with a broad demand and soared as much as 3/4 cent. December wheat closed at $2.28 1/2, December corn 1 1/2 cents higher at $1.38 1/2, and November soybeans around $16.82 1/2.

Buying of wheat appeared mainly influenced by the demand for winter wheat, with traders expecting a continuance of the price support program and heavy exports.

Initial Grain Margins Are Lowered in Chicago

CHICAGO—(AP)—Lower initial margin requirements on grain futures will be placed in effect by the Board of Trade today. The new margins will be 20 cents a bushel on wheat, 15 cents on corn, 25 cents on rye and 20 cents on soybeans. Margins have been 25 cents on wheat and corn and 40 cents on rye and soybeans. Oats margins will remain unchanged at 10 cents.

Atlanta Builders Told Low Cost Housing Need

Atlanta Home Builders last night heard a warning from Past Pres. Luther Boggs that time is running out for private builders to do something about low cost housing in Atlanta.

John A. White, City Council Slum Clearance Chairman, told the builders there are 12,000 applications on file for houses ranging from $30 to $50 a month in Atlanta, and Builder B. A. Martin told his fellow members indications are the high cost housing market is slowing down.

City Engineer Wynt Bean, representing the City Planning Commission, and Bruce Wedge, of the County Planning Commission, promised full co-operation in passing upon plans for housing within the limits by which they are bound.

Harry Cooper, of the Veterans' Administration, said the prime need of veterans is for low cost housing. He said 60 percent have incomes that don't permit them to make payments above the $35 to $50 a month range. But, he said, veterans will stampede for housing ranging in price from $500 to $7,500.

Of difficulty in finding a market for GI housing paper, he said it was the patriotic duty of financing agencies to take it, pointing out that there is no better secured investment. But he said pressure for an increase in interest rates is heavy. Cooper said the VA has guaranteed approximately 32,000 GI loans in Georgia to date, amounting to approximately $166,000,000. About half of that, he said, is in the Atlanta area.

John Thigpen, Asst. State Director of the FHA, said evidence is that the building industry will be called upon to produce lost-cost housing. He said the FHA is insuring loans on some of it now, and that it can run the loans to 30 years if the amount does not exceed $8,000.

Don Bridges, of the FHA, suggested the builders establish some standard method of computing costs to cut down on the wide variation in estimates that brings disputes over values of finished housing. He said the FHA has been given authority to hire more help in order that it may catch up with applications.

Boggs urged builders to consult lists of available building lots being compiled by Wynt Bean at the City Hall.

Electric Output Sets New Mark; 4th in Succession

NEW YORK—(P)—Electric output established a new high for the fourth successive week in the period ended Oct. 30, the Edison Electric Institute reported yesterday.

The total of 5,555,254,000 kilowatt hours compared with 5,538,885,000 in the preceding week and was 10.9 percent ahead of 5,009,286,000 in the corresponding period a year ago.

BARELY MISSES 'GREATNESS'

Ayres, Wyman Misfits As Stars of 'Belinda'

By PAUL JONES

"Johnny Belinda" came very close to becoming one of the great movies of the year. It failed to achieve this greatness simply because Jane Wyman and Lew Ayres just were not meant for the roles they are called upon to portray.

"Belinda" opened yesterday at the Fox Theater. At its conclusion the audience let go its pent-up emotion and applauded this fine film because it does pack an emotional wallop. The story, about a deaf girl who bears a child out of wedlock and then is forced to kill a man to protect her offspring, has great possibilities.

Warner Bros. has given this photoplay skillful treatment in almost every department. The filming, production, the settings and the supporting players fit into an interesting pattern of suspense, action and devotion. Charles Bickford and Agnes Moorehead hand in sincere portrayals in the roles of the "Dummy" parents. Miss Wyman, on the other hand, appears too static. She doesn't breathe into the part the dramatic impact it calls for. Ayres' personality should have made him a natural for the role of the doctor who befriends the "Dummy," but he, too, failed to respond to the part's great possibilities.

Rosalind Russell makes her first appearance as star and producer of a movie in "The Velvet Touch," a murder yarn, which opened yesterday at the Paramount Theater. The pretty film star duetted in the production role with her hubby, Frederick Brisson.

Whodunit With Fluff

The movie is a showy piece which exhibits lush trimmings and polished performances by the cast, which includes such able performers as Sydney Greenstreet, Claire Trevor, Leo Genn, Frank McHugh and others. But, in striving for a slick-page presentation, Producers Russell and Brisson have overlooked the millions of "pulp" fans who like their murder stories without so much fluff. The yarn is about an actress who murders her producer. An innocent girl is accused and driven to suicide. The luscious-looking culprit finally confesses, to satisfy the nation's movie-going insistence that the criminal shall always be found guilty, but she is not legally associated with the crime.

Charter for Bank In Buckhead Ordered by Court

Judge Virlyn B. Moore, of Fulton Superior Court, yesterday ordered the State Banking Department to grant a charter to the Peachtree Trust Company in Buckhead.

State Banking Supt. O. G. Jackson had denied applications of the Peachtree Trust Company, the C. & S. National Bank, and a firm represented by Grange, Hensley, on the ground that another bank was not needed in the Buckhead area.

Atty. Alex McLennan, one of the founders of the proposed Peachtree Trust Company, filed court action to force Jackson to grant his bank a charter, and won. Associated with McLennan in the bank are Charles Yates, W. A. Hanger, Dr. Marvin Mitchell, and Dr. Bernard Wolfe.

Loeb, Hirsch Win At Weekly Bridge

Lewis Loeb and Jack Hirsch won the weekly tournament sponsored by the Old South Bridge Studio at the Kimball House.

Second place went to Dr. Steve Gernazian and J. P. Allen. Edwin Nix and John Tanner were third.

MEXICO CITY—(INS)—Mexico is the first country to use DDT to prevent typhus fever. This was revealed recently in the report of the Mexican Ministry of Public Health to the Pan-American Sanitary Conference.

47 Million Didn't Vote--Why?

About 45,000,000 voters went to the polls on Tuesday. Another 47,000,000 stayed at home. "Why?" and "Who?" remain the big questions. Those who went to the polls contained a majority which did not like Thomas E. Dewey. But it is more likely it was not Dewey they disliked so much, but that they were more afraid of interests which were so plainly able to dominate the Eightieth Congress, and which they feared would control Dewey.

The lobby which defeated Federal aid to low-cost and low-rental housing in the Eightieth Congress was so greedy it gave several million persons the idea that if they couldn't afford to pay at least $85 a month for a place to live they could stay in rat-infested slums... and like it. Federal aid would not have hurt any real estate owner save exploiters of slums. There is not any good reason why there should not be Federal aid on low-income housing. The low returns are not attractive to private lending. Such housing can be only by Federal aid. Other values are increased. And for the lobby to fight it was folly.

Control Harry S. Truman and his administration were vulnerable on the issue of controls. It had been the administration's early removal of controls which had made impossible any efficient functioning of OPA. But when high prices came along the women who had been in line at butcher shops screaming for steak forgot all about their criticism of controls. They had before them not merely the failure of the Eightieth Congress to do anything about it, but the error of the GOP leaders in the Eightieth Congress of being flippant about the issue. It is not a flippant issue even though it is true there was no need for Congress could have done about it. A serious and sincere effort would have been appreciated. The GOP treated it merely as Truman politics. To millions of housewives it was a reality, not a political issue.

Farmers The GOP made another error in its attitude toward the farmer. The farmer was no denying the fact that the price support bill, because of the slump in demand for some items and because of unexpected surpluses, had produced extreme situations, particularly in the potato market. Certain interests, seeking to reduce living costs at the expense of the farmer only, set out to destroy the parity agreement and the associated price support measures.

Even this might not have thrown most of the farmers to Truman. But, about three weeks ago there came a break in prices. This did not reach down to the consumer, but the farmer felt it immediately. The farmer is conservative when he is well off, but he turns into a passionate government when he gets hit. It is my opinion that the farmer turned to Truman in the last three weeks.

Labor Labor gets a hand from the Truman headquarters, and properly so. Labor, of course, was but one of the factors. If all labor had voted for Truman, which it did not, it would have been but a few million of the many millions of votes. But labor was tremendously effective in the big cities where many many persons were not voting. Labor organizations got out their members and families.

Votes The vote was small. As many people stayed at home as voted. Those who wanted to vote—labor, the farmer and those people who felt they had to look to Truman to get housing, social security and recognition, were joined by the Democrats who stayed with their party, and by those who couldn't stomach Wallace and the Communists. This included the Negro vote. In general, only Negro Communists went to Wallace. Others saw through him and stayed with Truman.

Why? As a Democrat who wanted the party to win, I did not believe it could. I had sensed the uneasiness on the farms. I knew, too, that the Eightieth Congress had hurt. But, when my calculations told me that in the estimate of the vote, it should have been at least 55,000,000 and a 60,000,000 vote would not have been surprising. But it was about 45,000,000.

So, we come to the next question. Why didn't the Republicans vote? Much of the vote that Dewey got was from former Democrats who went to Dewey. The vote from the normally Republican was shockingly small. Why did millions of Americans not vote at all?

That Dewey was able to carry his own State by a very small margin, despite the fact of a huge Wallace vote in New York City—almost 500,000—is amazing. But that public suspicion of Dewey and the GOP was so great as to cause California to desert its underdog Gov. Earl Warren and vote for Truman, is astounding and seriously requires that the Republicans themselves examine not Dewey so much as the grounds upon which he was chosen. It is well to recall that the rank and file of Republicans wanted Stassen or Vandenberg.

It now is apparent that most of those who did not vote at all were Republicans, since many normally Democratic did vote for Dewey.

The "why" of that is important to us all.

BILLY ROSE

He Paid for the Lessons

All I remember about Mike Curcella is that (a) he was one of the nastiest brats spawned on the East Side, and (2) the rest of us considered him the luckiest kid alive—he never had to worry about his report card because his mother couldn't read English.

Mrs. Curcella is a bit clearer in my memory. She was a sparrow woman with a shawl around her head and a face that was eyes—two big, dark, staring eyes. And she had a cold-water tenement that was considered run-down even in our run-down neighborhood.

There my personal knowledge of the Curcellas stops, and I'd be scratching my brain for column material today if Sam Carmel, who has been taping mail on the East Side for 30 years, hadn't brought me up to date.

Progress Mike, it seems, had gone directly from baby to hood, and by the time he was 25, his hand, down to and including the trigger finger, had become skilled in finding pay rolls that weren't lost. He had moved uptown to a fancy apartment in the East 50s, sporting a big Peeler's touring car, and had quite a reputation for getting away with murder. And though his feelings for his mother were something less than filial, he continued to pay her rent, and on his quick monthly visits downtown he would generally slip her a few tainted dollars.

After several years of living alone, the old lady faced up to him one day and said, "It's very lonely here, son, and would be nice if I could come live with you uptown. I could cook and clean up, and wouldn't hardly be in the way at all."

"Ya wouldn't like it uptown," said Mike. "I got all kinds a big people comin' ta see me, and ya don't even speak English decent."

"English I could learn," his mother said. "Tell ya what," said Mike. "Ya get somebody ta give ya English lessons an' I'll pay fa dem. When ya loin ta read an' write good, we'll talk about it some more."

Mrs. Curcella did exactly that, and from then on spent her evenings in the company of a young school teacher named Wilma Franck who was glad to pick up an extra $5 a week. Wilma was an orphan and, in her way, as lonely as the old lady, so it wasn't long before she was having most of her meals at the Curcella flat and gladly accepting the mother-hen attentions of her pupil.

Change Then after several months of lessons, Mike began visiting his mother more regularly. By this time, the hoodlum had become calloused to the general run of Broadway bimbos—all brass and a yarn wide—and the gentleness of the little teacher hit him right beneath his shoulder holster. He began by taking Wilma home and then, without his mother knowing it, graduated to taking her out.

Those were the days when newspapers were making heroes out of public enemies, and Wilma, who had never met anyone remotely like Mike, couldn't help but be intrigued. One night the hoodlum took her to the Silver Slipper and to Reuben's at dawn for scrambled eggs, and a few days later the teacher walked into the flat, sporting a big diamond ring and told the old lady she and Mike were going to be married.

Mrs. Curcella laid down the afternoon paper she had been lip-spelling through, the headlines of which concerned themselves with a spectacular jewelry store stick-up on Madison Avenue. "Wilma," she said, "God forgive me if I tell you a lie, but Mike is a thief and there is blood on his hands. You are more my daughter than he is my son, and you must not do this terrible thing."

"I know all about Mike," said the teacher, "but I'm in love with him."

Mrs. Curcella knew it was useless to argue. "Excuse me what I say," she said, and then picking up her pencil, began to spell out slowly. "The cat is small but the dog is big." Two days later, the police arrested Mike and charged him with the Madison Avenue robbery. At headquarters the gangster talked big about his alibi, but gave up when the detectives confronted him with the diamond ring and told him that Wilma had admitted he had given it to her.

"Ya betta tell that dame not ta be in town when I get outta stir," said Mike.

"That won't be for a long time," said a detective, "and besides it wasn't your girl who turned you in. We picked you up because of an anonymous letter we got. Maybe you'd like to see it."

Mike studied the penciled scrawl which began, "Dear Police—"

"Do you recognize the handwriting?" asked the detective.

"I oughta," said Mike. "I paid fer fr lessons."

A Little Advice to the President

We wish to inform the present incumbent of the Casa Blanca that four years is a long, long term. Eight years is stacking Peljon on Oscar. Twelve is abusing the preamble to hospitality and 16 is patriotism with intent to establish squatter sovereignty.

If you have an aunt that bakes apple pies let her bake on and get that over with. We are fed up on White House pets, even if they are in the Cabinet. If you want music why not put in a juke box and let everybody have talent?

For the last 16 years every angle of White House publicity has been milked drier than cracked corn. Why not walk out some morning and find an Indian tribe camped on that porch? Quintuplets have never been born in the White House. There never has been a good murder there.

Remember the White House is a home and not a relative's office building.

THE PULSE OF THE PUBLIC

The Constitution welcomes letters on either side of any subject. They should not exceed 200 words and must be signed, although names will be withheld on request. We regret none can be returned. Address all letters to Editor Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Same Goal

Editor Constitution: The election is over. Organization Democrats and Republicans alike, as a smoke screen, belabored and berated Wallace as a Communist "scapegoat." They all but ignored the issues of conservation of resources, human and material.

How insincere this evasion in the light of the fact that (1) Communists are merely regimented Socialists who dare not graft or malingering; (2) Socialists are all of us, depending upon whether or not our economic "oxen" are being goaded or kissed by State or Federal legislative subsidy "bills."

The Communists ("Socialists in a hurry") advocate force and violence along all lines. The Socialists, pretending gradualism, are proceeding with considerable speed along the lines of least resistance in housing, banking, medicine, etc., pretending to hate each the other, both, inexorably, are driving and leading us into the "garrison" State. J. L. R. BOYD, Atlanta.

Markers Coming Up

Editor Constitution: On Monday, Nov. 1, 1948, you published a letter from Mr. Carlton W. Shaw with reference to the lack of directional signs to the Atlanta Municipal Airport. By coincidence, the marking of routes to the Airport was one of the principal projects already on the agenda for the meeting of the Aviation Committee of the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce scheduled for that same Monday afternoon.

Our Committee has directed that I write to tell you and Mr. Shaw that we plan to push for immediate action on this important, but neglected, phase of aviation progress for Atlanta.

BILL THOMAS, Chairman, Aviation Committee, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Atlanta.

Give Him Support

Editor Constitution: President Truman deserves congratulations, sympathy and support on account of his victory. He has won almost single handed against almost insurmountable difficulties: all of the polls, most of the newspapers, most of the money and, worst of all, a divided party, with even the Democratic friendly papers fighting him the most effective way with doubts and slurs about his ability, etc. No President ever won under more difficult circumstances.

Atlanta. GEORGE W. THRELKELD.

'You Ain't Kidding'

Editor Constitution: I have learned, being a preacher, that once in a great while we say things that have more truth in them than we expected. I suppose that you are having the same experience many times. Surely, the lead line on your column this morning is an instance... "History Will Deal Kindly With Truman."... You ain't kidding, brother. THOMAS J. HOLMES, Manchester.

'Infernal Machine'

Editor Constitution: Voting every day in America gets to be more of a farce, but the voting machine is the very capstone of confusion, I believe.

I am a master's degree graduate in the social sciences, but I could not tell you who or what I voted for Tuesday; indeed, I hardly know whether I pulled the right lever even for the party I intended to vote for. As for the amendments, and personnel of the election, I can only throw up my hands with disgust! I hardly know what or whom I did, or did not, vote for. Almost wish I hadn't troubled to try to vote.

My teen-age son offered an intelligent comment: "We ought to have had that ballot at home to study over at least a week before voting, to know the least thing about it, mama. Why couldn't we have had it, and gotten a notary public to have certified it, when we were ready to vote?"

These machines should have been running at least a week, if they were to be used; but I despise all the levers and paraphernalia of them! I'd rather thoughtfully indicate with a pencil my preferences. A fellow doesn't know what he's doing with a dozen behind him waiting to vote the fool thing, anyway! Why couldn't the notary publics all over the city take our votes, too? That would check the concentrated voting that can be manipulated. ATLANTA. CITIZEN.

More Talmadge Turnips

Editor Constitution: I, too, am a neighbor of Mr. C. A. Pittman, who wrote on "Talmadge Turnips" on Oct. 25, and I want to "back him up" on everything he said.

I went over and picked my family a mess and were they fine, with "good ole cawn-bread!" I know Mr. Talmadge has turnip greens, but he should try some of these.

I'm going to put some in our freezer locker and have "Talmadge turnip greens" the year 'round. MRS. ERNEST H. BURGER, SR., Atlanta.

What They Want

Editor Constitution: As goes the Gallup Poll, so goes Maine. Truman is the only unsurprised man in the country. The people want the New Deal and they don't want atomic power turned over to big business, and our friends in Europe can sleep on either ear. Athens. CHARLES G. BENSON.

New Job for Pegler?

Editor Constitution: It seems to me that it is an awful shame that a man with such a vast storehouse of knowledge concerning politics is wasting his time writing about past Presidents. All good Democrats should vote Westbrook Pegler into some soft political job. Personally, I think his present job stinks. Manchester. SKOTTY FISHBURNE.

Where's Arnall?

Editor Constitution: "In the South politics is a lifetime career. You enter it when you are young and you remain in it until the undertaker or the voters intervene." So wrote ex-Gov. Ellis Arnall in "The Shore Dimly Seen." I want to know which intervened. He's disappeared since Sept. 8! GEORGIA MORAN, Americus.

What Now, Henry?

Editor Constitution: It is to be hoped that now Henry Wallace will retire to the land of "Innocuous Desuetude," where the voters of the USA have consigned him to, and that we shall have no more of his Red-kissing, Communist "bushwa." ATLANTA. JOHN D. WEBB.

Thanks

Editor Constitution: Thank you so much for the splendid publicity you gave our 4-H Club members while at the State Congress. NELSON. SARAH HOLCOMBE.

Old Bubblehead

Editor Constitution: (Telegram.) If you will advise me how to reach old Bubblehead Pegler I will travel to his Guru-some side and soothe his muddled brow. I don't know which is the deader, Bubblehead Pegler or Bubblehead Wallace. ATLANTA. H. S. WISDOM.

No Comfort to Mr. Stalin

There is one significant and very gratifying fact of President Truman's election which generally, in the utter surprise, has been overlooked.

It is simply that there will be no gap, real or imaginary, in this country's foreign policy. If Russia had any intent of starting trouble in that interim between the election of a new President and the time he takes office, those plans were effectively throttled by Mr. Truman's astounding success.

Whatever gap might have come with Mr. Dewey's victory at the polls certainly would have been less than the Kremlin anticipated. Despite the bitterness of the campaign on domestic issues, there was co-operation—real and complete—in the thinking on foreign policy. Not only was John Foster Dulles in Paris with the UN delegation, but he had a special wire to Mr. Dewey which kept the Republican candidate apprised of all developments, just as Mr. Truman was kept in touch with the proceedings.

Even so, however, many observers believed Russia was ready to resort to drastic moves in the event of Mr. Dewey's election on the theory that a lame duck President would be unable effectively to cope with the situation and the President-Elect would be powerless to intervene. Such a move might have come in France, where the Communist General Confederation of Labor has defied the Government, or it might have come in the Berlin area.

Russia, in desperation, still might be tempted to make such a move. But is is doubtful. The Kremlin no longer can count on any lapse in our firm policy. Stalin knows the President will not hesitate to take whatever measures may be necessary to cope with Communist-stirred trouble.

WILLIAM H. FIELDS

What Does Truman's Victory Mean?

Tuesday's election means many things to many people.

To the labor unions that supported Truman, and that includes most of them, it means repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. To the ultra-liberals and left-wingers it means an end to congressional loyalty investigations of the type carried on by the Thomas Committee. To those who believe in big government, and that includes the Northern Democrats who pushed through with the so-called civil rights plank in the party platform, it means the Government has a mandate to continue the policies of the last 16 years and even expand upon them.

To all it means, despite Mr. Truman's talk about anti-inflation laws, a continuation of the inflationary policies pursued by the Democratic regime since 1933.

But just how clear is this mandate? Do the labor unions believe the public wants the anti-Communist provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act, for instance, repealed. The Atomic Energy Commission now is in the process of ousting the Communist-ridden United Electrical Workers Union from General Electric atomic plants. Do the labor leaders insist that the security of the nation would not be placed in jeopardy should this provision be wiped off the statute books and the Communists, who admittedly control the UEW, be allowed free reign in the plants which make the weapon that even now serves as a warning to aggressive-minded Russia?

Despite the Democratic sweep, two arch-Republicans who typify all Mr. Truman's objections to the Eightieth Congress were returned to office. They are Rep. Thomas, of New Jersey, Chairman of the House Un-American Affairs Committee, and Rep. Taber, of New York, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. Likewise, a great many Congressmen who voted for the Taft-Hartley Act are coming back.

President Truman's victory was more astounding for its unexpectedness than for its magnitude. At this writing, available popular vote returns indicate he may be a minority President—that is, that he might have failed to poll a majority of the votes cast. Had the Democrats not been split that situation might be reversed, but on the other hand it might not. The Wallace vote would have gone for him and he probably would have got a big portion of the Thurmond vote, though many in the South voted the Dixiecrat ticket who viewed it as a happy alternative to voting Republican.

The President, regardless of how weak he might have been in July, started out with the labor vote in hand. There are about 15,000,000 union members. The half-million or so who were for Wallace were not strong enough to count. Mr. Truman thus had the nucleus of a strong following regardless of what might come. Only a few million normal Democrats needed to be added to give him the electoral votes necessary to win. The Republicans were so apathetic, so confident of victory—and their candidate was so uninspiring—that large numbers who

JOHN MARVIN RAST

And He hath said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee; for my power is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my weakness, that the power of Christ may rest upon me. Wherefore I take pleasure in weaknesses, in injuries, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake: for when I am weak, then I am strong.—II Corinthians, 12:9, 10.

A teacher was telling to some little girls the story of Abraham's preparation to sacrifice Isaac. So vivid was the narrative that one child cried out and begged the teacher to stop. Another spoke up: "You don't need to worry. It is one of God's stories, and they always come out right." She spoke more wisely than she knew. But for the good ending of the story of Abraham and Isaac there was needed the unswerving faith of Abraham in God. Any of God's stories can come out right only as they are hinged upon such devotion on the part of His children.

Hold us, O God, to fulfillment of Thy high calling through Christ our Lord.

Big Interests Were Too Greedy

WASHINGTON—Harry S. Truman knows the folks who vote. He demonstrated very satisfactorily, as far as this reporter is concerned, that he knows about the psychology of the people of his country than the paid-by-the-hour psychologists, the "experts" who were so very sure he couldn't possibly win, including this blushing exhibit, and the professional pollsters who think they can chart what people think.

And, with his perception of human nature, he did the trick all by himself, with no outside help. He alone, apparently, had the magnificent obsession that he could win.

His victory was not only a tribute to his own sound sense and a sure political intuition, his courage, his faith in himself and in the people, his dogged persistence in a grueling campaign, but it was also a tribute to the sound sense of the American people. They demonstrated again that, given the chance, they are nearly always able to distinguish for themselves between the real and the artificial, the honest and the phony, with that rare discernment that has made our democracy the living, vital thing that it still remains in a world of confusion and considerable sham.

The party had little money. In many States the organization was weak and handicapped by dissension. Many candidates on the Democratic ticket would not even mention his name for fear it would endanger their hold on their own jobs. And one of the most interesting things about the election, and somewhat ironical also, was that he brought in many of these "Summertime Democrats" in Congress on his coattails. That little joke he must indeed enjoy, along with his joke on the "experts."

It was a modern Pied Piper performance. The President set out over the country piping his story. Nobody seemed to pay too much attention. Then, come election day, somehow or other they got in line, a great multitude of them, and walked in and voted for him.

His election is regarded as virtually a miracle. This all-wise town is filled with little groups here and there asking, "What happened?" It is a miracle in a way, and yet when you follow the trail back carefully the simple plan evolves, and you wonder why nobody saw it. There are enough plain people in all walks of life in this country to elect a President, and this embraces two groups highly organized, industrial workers and farmers.

To arouse people politically an issue is necessary. The Republican Party, when it captured control of Congress in 1946, handed one to him on a silver platter, as the astute now realize too late. Big interests caught the people napping after the ordeal of war and were able, by well-financed propaganda, to elect a Congress that immediately proceeded to do its bidding. They were too greedy.

President Truman went out and told the folks about it in plain language they could understand. And what they did to Congress is now a matter of history, and what they did for him for telling them is, too. He leaned heavily on the first rule of effective propaganda, which is to tell the story over and over. He was not a whit disturbed when sophisticated in the East called him crude and uncouth. He knew what he was doing and what effect it would have—much better than Dr. Gallup.

In contrast with his earnestness and his plain talk was the slick, clever, smug, extremely efficient campaign mapped out for the young man from Manhattan which was based on the strategy of the best minds to say nothing prettily and coast in to victory. It was the Park Avenue artificiality that arouses suspicion in people beyond the Hudson. And the eloquent young man seemingly did not wear too well.

He never got his clothes mussed up, nor the nice part of his hair. Harry Truman is a neatly-dressed fellow, but with that extreme neatness a bit on the flashy side, familiar on so many Main streets. But his spirit was constantly mussed up with his earnest and determined fight. The American people love a scrapper.

He emerges as a kind of Andrew Jackson character, a plain man of the people against those who would exploit them. And he owes nobody anything, not the big interests which spent so much money and planned so carefully to get him out of the way; not the Dixiecrats who were left out in the cold with their prejudices by his victory; not a lot of "Summertime Democrats" who refused to lift a hand for him; not the labor leaders who a few months ago were trying to dump him but rallied about him for self-preservation.

THE QUESTION:

The South eats very little lamb and mutton. Why do you think that is?

THE ANSWERS:

MRS. W. G. REEVES, 1328 Ponce de Leon Ave., N. E., salesperson—I don't know, because I'm real good to me. I like lamb. It's probably because they're just not in the habit. People are creatures of habit, more or less. People are also stubborn. They probably couldn't be educated to eat it unless they get awfully hungry. I expect there are a lot of people in Europe today who'd like to have some of the things we turn up our noses at.

MRS. J. H. ATTAWAY, 476 Bryan St., S. E., housewife—I never eat any. Frankly, I don't even like it. I guess, we didn't have it served in the home as I was growing up. But his probably one reason I don't like it. I've never even bought any at the stores, because my husband doesn't like it. Mutton was served to him in the Army. He didn't like it at all. That's why I've never had it at home.

EARL W. PEEK, 511 Rock Springs Rd., N. E., insurance agency—It's due to the fact that very little of it is raised down South, I would say. I think, possibly some day, the South might begin to raise something besides cotton. They'd be much better off. That just about takes it in. I believe. Lots of people don't know what mutton is. They are not very accustomed to buying anything but beef.

MRS. GRADY TURNER, 431 E. Harvard Ave., College Park Ga., housewife—I don't guess there are very many sheep in the South. Personally, I don't care for it—my family or myself. I've tried serving it, looking for omelets, meat pies, beef and ham. We just don't like it at all. That would be bad if some of these cattle folks would read this. They'd say it would be bad to try to educate that lady to cultivate a taste for lamb.

Freedom Of Religion

The first clause of the First Amendment to the Constitution was intended to protect the freedom of religion.

It says: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

The first part of it no longer concerns us, but it seemed of vital importance to the men who wrote it. They had no forgotten the taxes they had paid, while English subjects, to help support the Church of England.

THEY had hated this injustice, and they were determined that America should never have a State religion—that the people should never be forced to support any religious establishment.

So their purpose in writing that part of the Amendment was not to guarantee freedom of religion, but to guarantee freedom from religion.

It is the second part of the clause that concerns us. It says that Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion.

The meaning of these words seems clear and unmistakable, yet in practice they can be interpreted to mean almost anything. Certainly they have been given meanings not intended by their authors.

WHAT IS MEANT by the "free exercise of religion?"

To the men who approved the words, in 1791, "religion" meant the religions and religious practices with which they were familiar. It meant dignity and sincerity in the worship of God.

They could not have foreseen that the "free exercise of religion" would include the holding of poisonous snakes; or that fortunetellers could evade the law by calling their graft a "religious service" and their fees a "collection"; or that cynical rogues could enrich themselves at the expense of the gullible and yet keep safely within the law by calling their scheme a religion.

The sad truth is that the word "religion" can be used to protect rascality, for most officers, judges and other public servants are afraid of it.

If we are to save religious freedom, we must in time have a new legal definition of religion that all good and reasonable citizens can agree upon.

EDITORS' ROUNDTABLE

Stalin's Blast a Cover-Up?

Editors, in very large majority, consider Stalin's recent blast at the West a defensive gesture against a growing weight of adverse world opinion, particularly designed to influence the Russian people; they see it indicating no significant change of policy soon.

However, some editors fear that his bitter attack on the "neutral" nations, whose compromise Berlin blockade proposal Russia rejected, indicates a new and dangerous Russian political offensive.

Columbus (Ohio) Evening Dispatch (Ind.): "One (view) has it that the Russian dictator is becoming impatient and... laying the groundwork for an even stronger political push against the West. The Powers and perhaps something even worse. Another view sees Stalin forced into a position of justifying himself and his emissaries... and... trying to clarify his position in the eyes of the world to gain his peace by further 'peaceful' negotiation, peaceful in the sense of not wanting to shoot. This latter interpretation seems to be the more logical..."

Christian Science Monitor (Ind.): "In the Stalin statement the Soviet Union embarks—perhaps it is only a trial trip—on a new and most dangerous strategy. For... the Soviet now throws at the neutrals accusations of supporting a policy of 'unleashing war'... He leaves it to conjecture what the Soviet Union may do to counter this alleged threat to its security... Does the Stalin statement mean war? No, it does not of itself. It is another effort by the Soviet Union to obtain the objective of an expansionist policy short of war—just short of it."

El Paso (Texas) Herald-Post (Ind.): "The Russian dictator might have convinced some anti-American and anti-British citizens in other countries, but he threw away that chance by indicting all six neutral nations of the Security Council as well as China, Belgium, Argentina, Colombia and Syria, according to Stalin, also 'support a policy of aggression, a policy of unleashing a new war.' When any man insists that everyone else is crooked, and he alone is honest, he is a crook. He is not a crook, he is crazy or criminal or both."

Baltimore (Md.) Sun (Ind.-Dem.): "At the risk of being accused of what it is fashionable to call wishful thinking, we suggest that those who argue that the interview was designed primarily for consumption inside Russia and for use by Communist stooges elsewhere can make the best case of all."

Charlotte (N. C.) Observer (Ind.-Dem.): "Stalin knows that what he says is accepted as the truth by most of the people of Russia and by many in the satellite states, who are deprived of the opportunity to know or learn the truth. And, having a distorted conception of public thinking among free peoples, he may believe that what he says carries weight throughout the world. Totalitarian dictators have an exaggerated conception of their own importance."

St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat (Ind.): "Stalin did not expect to convince anyone outside Russia... His glowing discourse was to stiffen the back of Russian trepidation in the face of world censure. His outburst proves only one thing in international councils—that Russia still intends to remain obstinate to negotiation or co-operation for international peace."

Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal (Ind.-Dem.): "Stalin's interview indicates a desire to reopen the Berlin discussions on a four-power basis."

ATLANTA DRIVERS

(With apologies to Joyce Kilmer's "Trees")

I wish that I could live to see
An Atlanta motorist driving carefully,
A driver who for times not pressed
To cause him always to drive with zest,
A driver who may at all times care

How the other driver is to fare
And not think of driving as a riddle

Always taking his half from the middle,
Drivers great things might live to see

If only they would drive carefully.

How well we know... we should be slow... to point accusing fingers... at sinful men... or women when... we know the devil lingers... with traps well-laid... just when they've made... a wholesome resolution... and being frail... they often fail... to lend it execution.

Some men, we think... are born to drink... and with wild women frolic... and some will shun... unwholesome fun... and potions alcoholic... but good and bad... we all have had... our seasons of temptation... and moments black... which set us back... and threatened our salvation.

It isn't fair... but when you swear... you'll go upon a diet... the women make... a fattening cake... and then insist you try it... or when you swore... you'd swear no more... nor use those obscene phrases... you cut your chin... or crack your shin... and cuss like Billy Blazes.

There may be saints... with no complaints... who sing their way to glory... but for you and me... it seems to be... a different kind of story.

'And Also Bug-Eyed'

WASHINGTON—Dazzled. Confused. Bewildered. Dazed. Astonished. Dumfounded. Stunned. Aweed. Wonderstruck. Spellbound. Startled. Confounded. Flabbergasted. Staggered. And also bug-eyed. Me? I'm just trying to describe the capital of the U. S. A. on this day of the Truman turnabout. The town didn't never be the same. Never.

The hotels, which reserved all their rooms for Republicans, are canceling same and going through the rigamarole again for Democrats. The elaborate houses (and there were many of them) bought by Republicans tentatively with small deposits, went back on the market again. No buyers, either. The Democrats, trying not to act smug, already had roofs over their aching heads.

These were happy headaches, I hasten to report. Some of our incredulous office holders, when the truth finally dawned, celebrated not wisely but well. And who can blame 'em for that? One minute the big shots in the Government were worrying about where they'd land 60 days hence; the next minute, they knew. The little shots, whose jobs were safe under Civil Service, been worrying about how it'd feel to work for Republicans. And as suddenly their problems vanished.

No wonder the functions of our Government ground to a halt for the first 24 hours after Mr. Truman's victory; most of the marble-lined halls resembled Mardi Gras at nighttime; never was the chatter so loud, so long and so gay in the Government cafeterias.

Only on Capitol Hill was there gloom. All the cops, the elevator operators and the matrons of the ladies' powder rooms were Republicans. They got their jobs only a couple of years ago; now with the Democrats taking over again, out they go.

Capitol Architect David Lynn was figuring out how we'd seat the Democrats on the proper sides of the aisles. John Rankin, the white-haired gentleman from Mississippi, seemed destined to become head man of the Un-American Activities Committee. The billiken-like figure of Harold Knutson, the Congressman who got the credit for slashing taxes, would be seen no more.

The Vice President's office, lounge and limousine had a tenant again, name of Barkley, dear Alben. And the Democrats were fighting already about who'd succeed him as leader of the Senate. The page boys were about to be reshuffled along Democratic lines.

Tom Connolly, of the white mane and the diplomatic way with lady witnesses, once more will preside as head of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

And Sen. Bill Langer, of North Dakota, no longer can sit on the appointments Mr. Truman made to Post Offices all over the land. Sen. Bill figured that he'd hold up the appointments of 800-odd postmasters until the Republicans took over the White House. Now he's had his mind changed for him and loyal Democrats all over will continue to read the taxpayers' postcards.

Strangest sight in town probably is the National Press Club bar, where the experts order drinks and don't drink 'em, buy hamburgers and don't eat 'em, and wonder out loud how could they be so wrong? This is a pitiful spectacle, which I do not recommend to sight-seers.

Friday Mr. Truman makes his triumphant return to Washington. The city fathers, who figured he had no chance, are putting up the bunting now. You'd never guess, to look at 'em, that they hadn't planned their whoop for the miracle man of the White House all along.

WESTBROOK PEGLER

Liquor Workers--a Typical AFL Union

Although many of our unions are Communist fronts of an enemy nation and others are plain rackets like Mussolini's labor front, the fact remains that our native union movement has iniquities of its own and has not had to worry anywhere. Proud of his criminal traditions, the American union goon can hold up his head in any society of cut-throats. He was notorious when Roosevelt and a poltroon Congress passed the Wagner Act and the debilitating Frankfurter Anti-Injunction law which bore the names of Norris and LaGuardia. He has become bolder and more felonious with the years under Government protection, confident always that he has a partisan on the Supreme Court who holds him blameless of crime bearing the union label.

Frankfurter, who often passes on union cases, is one of those who delivered the American citizen into the brutal custody of the criminal racketeer.

Of course, this is general comment, but I, alone, of the savants on the subject, often resort to unqualified charges.

Most of the victims of the Roosevelt-Wagner-Frankfurter scheme against the safety and liberty of the citizens are civic defectives who deserve what they have been getting. They are persons of low principle who would sell themselves to any John L. Lewis for a few dollars a week or a promise of some undeserved pension at the expense of the civic defective next door.

But even if most of the Americans were men and women of character they still would have to submit to outrageous imposition by the criminal clients of Frankfurter's solicitude.

As a particular case in point the constitution of Local One of the Wine, Liquor and Distillery Workers Union of New York. This is a racket run by a typical union scoundrel, Ben Pross, whose greatest protection is Frankfurter's law forbidding Federal judges to enjoin him from rioting to drive citizens into his corral.

The preamble of the constitution of this union warns the faceless man to "base his philosophy and ideals on the American principles of democracy."

These principles are not set forth, however, and are exactly what the jail bird Pross may say they are at any time. Infidelity to the "American principles of democracy" is an offense punishable by expulsion at the hands of a crook born in Russia, whose right to vote and hold American public office was revoked because he was an unregenerate knave.

The salaries of Pross, whose title is executive business manager, and of the other "elective" officers are not stipulated. They just help themselves. Pross managed to buy a beautiful country estate, a powerboat, and a couple of cars, and to remodel the house and landscape the grounds sootily after the war.

Pross actually dominates this union and many others whose total power is sufficient to blackmail the entire liquor industry in New York, New Jersey and Connecticut. Big whiskey companies bow to his demands lest he pull the labor out of their plants without consulting these people. And bootleggers and even package stores and bars are in his power in the same way.

New we note further that the boys have constitutional authority to hire all their relatives and gangster friends for hypothetical duties and that the president "shall be the sole judge" of their salaries. He also appoints all the election tellers.

Pross is custodian of all the union's property, which, of course, includes its bankroll and books. He may spend as much as he wants to "further the welfare" of the members. He, too, may employ all his relatives and other thieves like himself to "campaign" for the union.

We find that the treasurer "shall report" all income and expenditures, but that means nothing. He could just report "received $10,000; spent $100,000," and fully comply with the article. Most unions which make boast of their "financial reports" report no more than that.

Pross and his executive circle are required to "examine the books and records" occasionally, and doubtless do. But they are required to report only to themselves, so again the bargaining agents preserve their freedom of action.

The bund may leave (their spelling) assessments and they have the power to make charges, prosecute them and impose punishment on their subjects, improving new punishments to fit crimes for which inadequate penalties are provided in the book.

Officers serve five years, but the rank and file are effectively excluded because any ambitious, faceless man may be ruled out on charges of "violation of principles upon which the union is founded."

"Members nominated for office" must be seconded, but there is no nominating process in the constitution. No date or season is set. No method is provided, and there is absolutely no provision for membership meetings for any purpose, ever.

"Meetings" are mentioned several times, but all the constitution says about this is that they shall be held "at such date and place as the executive board shall designate."

This is a typical union of the American Federation of Labor.

RECOVERING TOGETHER—Larry Bronnenberg, 3, and his dog Penny, 3 months, are recovering together these days after accidents all but incapacitated them. Playing airplane, Larry fell down the stairs in his home in Des Moines breaking his arm. Later, chasing a cat out the kitchen door, Penny lost, slipped and cracked a bone in her left hind leg. PERMISSION TO PLAY—In London, Helen Fogel, American pianist, was given permission by the Ministry of Labor to finish a concert tour started by her husband, Karl Ulrich Schnabel, also an American pianist. Doctors Hear Socialized Medicine Hit Socialized medicine took a terrific belting last night from Dr. Seale Harris, Professor Emeritus of the University of Alabama's School of Medicine, in an address to the Fulton County Medical Society.

The Birmingham educator and author called for united action against the possible "regimentation of doctors" in the United States into a modified socialization program within the next six months.

Dr. Harris said President Truman is an advocate of socialized medicine and that the United States has a labor government. Describing socialized medicine as "an experiment in human lives" Dr. Harris said he believed it would lead to an increased death rate.

Recently returned from a trip abroad, Dr. Harris deplored conditions in Great Britain where the socialized system is in operation. Dr. Harris described instances where doctors gave mass prescriptions without examinations. He said the system caused doctors to take more patients than they could handle in order to make a living.

He said the socialization program in Great Britain also had led to inferior hospital conditions.

"Socialization is a forerunner of dictatorship," Dr. Harris warned.

'Chip's' Tally Sheets
Historic Documents

By BILL BORING

L. W. (Chip) Robert, Jr., was back in town yesterday with some historic documents—the tally sheets which he used to keep the score for the party faithful at Democratic headquarters election night.

These sheets, with doodling and notations around the edges, convey the drama "behind the scenes" in perhaps America's greatest political upset.

Let's sit in with Robert and the other party faithful from the time they gathered until 11:15 p. m. Wednesday, when Dewey conceded. Let's go back to 11 p. m. Tuesday night, the time the tight little band of 50 gathered in a hotel suite in New York City.

You will recall that at that hour Truman was holding a slim lead. Nobody, however, expected him to win. Nobody except Truman himself, who was asleep out in Independence, Mo., and these men and women gathered at Democratic headquarters.

Robert was accustomed to such meetings as these. He had been in on four other election night gatherings at headquarters. But "The Champ" was running then. You could feel the undercurrent of emotions, the excitement. You could hear the constant drone of voices. There was the flash of bulbs, the press at the door by the surging thousands. There was the constant stream of well-wishers. All this was missing tonight. Not a single visitor the whole time. Truman was in the books to lose. Nobody was hitching up to a falling star.

Midnight, one o'clock, two, three four—the pendulum of balloting had hardly moved either way during all this time. Same slim ratio for Truman. The commentators were then talking of the election going to the House for a decision.

The party faithful most of this time had been watching the tickers, reading the news reports, making telephone calls to State leaders, biting their nails.

Now they began chewing pencils. At 5:30 a. m., Robert began the first tally sheet. Let's look at it. He puts Illinois in Truman's column, opposite the column he writes the word "Sure." Truman is 72,000 votes ahead in Illinois. There are checks by the States of Idaho, Nevada and Washington. Notations by Robert indicate the Democrat leaders expect them to come into the fold. If they do, Truman will have 248 votes. But 266 are needed to win. Robert notes that South Carolina and Louisiana, now going Dixiecrat, will swing to the Truman column before allowing the decision to go to Congress. That'll be 266 votes, enough to win! This sheet bore the autograph of Committee Chairman J. Howard McGrath.

A few more hours pass. The thing stays the same. Still the narrow margin that could give Truman victory. Now it's 9:45 a. m. Let's look at Robert's tally sheet. There's a notation, "First definite sign of victory." It's opposite the Ohio column. Ohio is giving Truman 13,000 more votes than Dewey at this time. Precincts still unreported are favorable to Truman on basis of what the Democrat leaders have been informed.

It's 10 o'clock now. Ohio is in the fold. Robert's tally sheet rings up "VICTORY." Champagne all around. Toasts to President Truman and a few more for Auld Lang Syne. Robert picks up the phone. Dewey headquarters. "Say, why don't you fellows concede; we're sleepy and want to go home!"

As far as the Party faithful were concerned, victory was now certain. For Robert, just in fun, Chairman McGrath wrote a note. It was scribbled on a piece of news copy paper. It was addressed to Evie Robert, Robert's attractive wife.

"Dear Evie: Please forgive Chip for staying out all night with me—J. Howard McGrath."

FYI: At Democrat headquarters Wednesday morning a toast was offered, too, to The Constitution's Editor, Ralph McGill. Robert, who proposed it, gave McGill more credit than any one man for swinging Georgia to the Democrat column. His constant hammering on the wisdom of the Two Party tradition; his plea to Georgians not to be swayed by demagogic pleas to sentiment on the part of selfish interests not interested in State Rights but in furthering their own ambitions. . . . Mrs. L. W. (Evie) Robert picked up a tidy sum backing with her money the man whom she was certain would win. Her husband didn't bet and so didn't lose any money, but he did lose a piece of a tooth. It chipped off when he bit down too hard on a pencil while tabulating the returns that showed Truman was in. Robert believes the finest result of the Truman

GOP, DEMOCRAT TO SHARE SEAT

ROCHESTER, N. H.—(P)—A Republican and a Democrat who tied for a seat in New Hampshire's House of Representatives have decided to share it.

City Councilor Albert Nelson, Republican, said he and Democrat Albert M. Jones would have half a vote and split the pay.

Secretary of State Enoch Fuller said the House Elections Committee would take up the tie vote when the Legislature meets in January.

Communists, extreme left-wing radicals and hate-mongers. This, he says, should be a consolation prize, so to speak, for all Democrats who joined the Dixiecrats.

Mr. Geri Really Earns Whatever Pay He Gets

I assume that Mr. Joe Geri is getting only ten a month to play football at Georgia because he was originally signed under our old grant-in-aid policy.

If this is true, Mr. Geri is the most underpaid man since that coed swallowed the grasshopper for 20 cents.

All Mr. Geri does for the Georgia football team is place-kick extra points, block, tackle, punt and run for touchdowns. His combined duties have placed him at the leadership of the Southeastern Conference in points scored this season.

Of course, there are other people on other teams who are required to do just as much, but the point I'm trying to make is that Geri has to do so much more than his predecessors for less money.

Before the war, Georgia's extra-point kicker was Leo Costa and during the conflict it was Mr. Gost Fernigan. These two members of the team had absolutely no other duties, not even pumping up the footballs.

They spent their practice hours kicking goals and never ran the risk of getting their noses banged up in scrimmage. In addition, they had plenty of time to devote to their school work.

But not so with Mr. Geri. Things have become so tough with the Georgia football team that Wallace Butts and Ears Whitworth have shouldered him with all these extra duties at no increase in pay.

It would be hard to blame Joe, who has booted 22 of 23 extra points this season, if he went on a strike, picketing games with signs like: "Georgia Unfair to Extra Point Kickers."

What About Rauch? You've been reading a lot about Jensen, of California; Walker, of SMU; Justice, of North Carolina; Scott, of Arkansas; Elliott, of Michigan, and Heath, of Nevada, being the top backs in the nation.

But what I want to know is what's wrong with Johnny Rauch?

The Georgia T-formation quarterback is enjoying his best season. While his passing record isn't quite as good statistically as it has been in previous years, the husky Pennsylvanian is still the best T-formation quarterback in the nation.

In addition to calling signals, Rauch is charged with the duties of blocking, calling offensive blocking, handling the ball, passing, running and playing defensive halfback.

The pounding he has taken from opposing linemen this season has been terrific. On the first pass play of the Kentucky game, for example, he was knocked groggy and staggered to the sidelines with a beautiful black eye.

"It was the blackest eye I ever saw," Wally Butts said. "Blacker 'n my shoe here. But John has what it takes and he was back in there two plays later. He takes his beating without a complaint and, I'm telling you, if I were him sometimes, I'd kick one of those linemen who missed his block right in the seat of his pants."

Tech Home-coming The Tennessee game at Grant Field Saturday is Tech's home-coming and already various classes have scheduled reunions.

Among them are the classes of 1908 and 1928. Scheduled to return to the scene of their college triumphs under Coach John Heisman in '08 are such former grid greats as C. L. Emerson, Louie Clarke, Heisman's first fullback, and L. W. (Chip) Robert, who played quarterback, halfback and end on the team.

Others include George McCarty, W. R. Snyder, of New York; J. E. Davenport, also of New York, who was a great track and baseball star; Dan MacIntyre, the football manager and member of the track team; T. F. Johnson, and Rob Ison, father of Bob Ison, Tech's All-American end of a few years ago.

Big plans are also being made for the '28 reunion. Members of Tech's Rose Bowl club of that year will be honored and the old grads will gather to rerun Roy Reigel's wrong-way run once again.

Pres. Blake Van Leer will be the honor guest.

LENA, Wis.—(AP)—Roman Borkovec, Lena High School guard, is one football player who believes what he's read about "playing in the other guy's back yard."

It happened against Suring. A half-sprinter was called with the Suring fullback due to make a hand-off to his right half.

But Borkovec burst through the line so fast he took the hand-off himself from the unsuspecting fullback and made 12 yards before being tackled.

Jackets Hold 3 SEC Leads

By JACK JACKSON

Georgia Tech's undefeated Yellow Jackets continued to dominate three departments but slipped behind Tulane in forward pass defense, according to weekly statistics released yesterday by Chick Hosch, Secretary of the Southeastern Conference Athletic Publicity Directors Association.

The Jackets held on to their leads in total offense, total defense and passing offense against Duke, but the Blue Devils' aerial attack enabled the Green Wave, which had a good day against Mississippi State, to take the pass defense lead.

Tech has allowed about six yards per game more than the Greenies, who vaulted from fourth place, Tulane has yielded 78.3 per tilt, and Tech has given 84.8. Tennessee, Mississippi State and Kentucky trail in that order.

In total offense, Florida made the biggest advance while rolling over Furman. The Gators moved from fifth into second place, but the Jacket lead is still more than comfortable. Tech has averaged 357.3 per game, while Florida has moved the ball 298.1 on the average. Georgia dropped from second to third, while Mississippi, Kentucky and Tulane follow.

On the defensive side of the picture, Tech's average yield of 132.5 is far ahead of second-place Tennessee's 178.3. The Vols advanced from third to second, even though they were playing North Carolina's powerhouse, Mississippi State is third, followed by Tulane, Vanderbilt and Georgia. Biggest change in the department was Mississippi, which dropped from sixth to eleventh, despite her rout of L. S. U.

The Bayou Tigers, by the way, trail the field in total offense, total defense and pass defense, while Vandy holds last place in passing offense.

Tech and Georgia are still one in passing offense, while Kentucky and Tennessee maintained their third and fourth spots. The Jacket average of 180.5 yards per game leads Georgia by some 20 yards. Alabama dropped from seventh to eleventh in pass offense and from sixth to seventh in pass defense while falling before the Bulldogs, 35-0.

The Jackets have tossed 10 touchdowns passes, while neither Tech nor Tulane have been scored on by the aerial route. L. S. U. has yielded seven scores by this method.

TOTAL OFFENSE

HUNSINGER'S RUSHING AVERAGE IS 8.8 YARDS-- TOPS IN THE S.E.C.

FLORIDA HALFBACK CHUCK HUNSINGER WILL TEST HIS RUNNING ABILITY AGAINST THE TOUGH GEORGIA LINE

Just about the most important ligament at Georgia Tech right now—the one in Halfback Bob McCoy's right knee—will get its test this afternoon as the Jackets run through their regular Friday loosening up on Grant Field, scene of their Saturday battle with the Volunteers, of Tennessee.

McCoy who has had no nothing but street clothes since the first quarter of last week's Duke game, will report in his football suit this afternoon and they'll give that knee the test. Last night he was still on the doubtful list for the grudge contest coming up tomorrow.

Just in case McCoy can't go Saturday Jimmy (Freight Train) Jordan, still 138 pounds of him, will be shifted over from his fullback position to right half and undoubtedly will see some service in that spot, particularly if McCoy is out.

Freight Train has played right half before, so the assignment won't be anything new for him.

Freight Train, incidentally, is one of the four Jackets to make the Dean's list, a mark of scholastic proficiency. The other footballers on the list are Guard Bill Healy, Center Raymond Smith and Guard Witt Langstaff.

Coach Bobby Dodd led his charges through a fairly light workout yesterday as the team is still a bit under per physical after their rough battle with the Dukes up in Durham. And coaches are being careful to bring them around to their game-play peak at which they hope they'll be just prior to 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

The drill yesterday was devoted more to aerial defense and attack than anything else. Indications are right now that onlookers will see many footballs flying through the air not only from the Tech side of the fence, but from Tennessee's ace pitcher, J. B. Proctor, as well.

Figures showing the relative strength of the Jackets and the Vols hold some interest. It seems the Tech folks have netted 2,144 yards in their six games to date against 1,464 net yardage of the Vols. The Jackets have scored 121 points to the Volunteers' 108 and the Jackets have allowed their opponents 21 points while the Tennesseans have permitted enemies to count for 48 points.

The Jackets have completed 70 of 124 passes, while the Vols have connected with 55 out of 114.

In individual statistics, Fullback Frank Ziegler is top man. He has carried 53 times for a net yardage of 257, averaging 4.9 per try. His runner-up is Halfback McCoy with a net 243 yards and a 7.3 yards average per try.

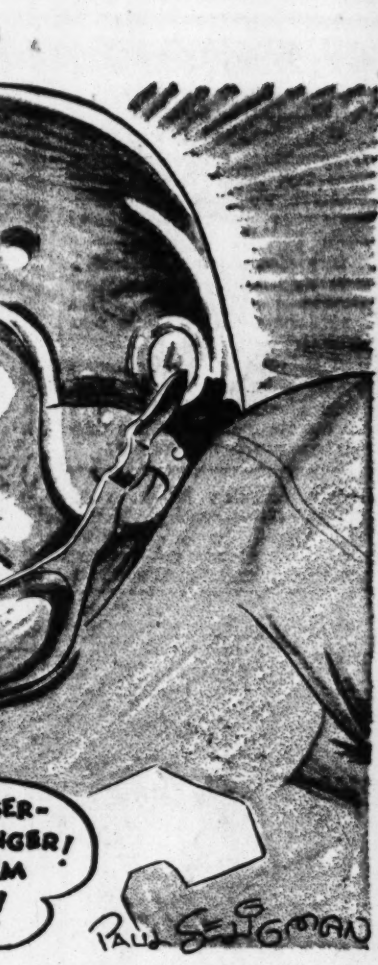

Jimmy Southard still leads the passers with 48 connections out of 76 throws.

Center Gene Frizzell is the only man at the Flats definitely out of Saturday's game. Gene's right hand is still on the mend and it will be next week before the medics give him the green light which is expected to give him back to the coaches in time to prepare for the Alabama game which comes up next week.

Frizzell, End George Broadnax and Halfback Al Lansing all were in sweat clothes yesterday while the rest of them were in full gear. Broadnax's elbow seems to be in shipshape but his spine is still sore from the blow of a Blue Devil boot. He'll be ready Saturday, however.

HUNSINGER-SHUNSINGER! I STOP 'EM ALL!

ATHENS—The usual Thursday afternoon cloud floated over the Georgia practice field yesterday afternoon just before 42 Bulldogs departed by train for Jacksonville and tomorrow's clash with Florida.

There has been more evident pessimism in the past but Georgia coaches long have had the name of playing everything but the favorite's role, until the ball game is won. Consequently, pessimism reaches a peak on Thursday, regardless of prevalent conditions.

The squad is in good mental condition for the Florida clash and the physical setup is okay, save Halfback Billy Henderson. Still the coaches were showing little signs of planning to take this game as a cinch. They expect to do that even when the Bulldogs rate the favorite's chair by three touchdowns and that is the case the Bulldogs were occupying when they boarded the train.

Probably the thing foremost in Coach Wally Butts' mind was the Jacksonville jinx. For some reason his red-shirted Bulldogs have seldom played what he terms "good football" in Jacksonville. Georgia has dropped but four of 26 contests with the Gators yet the coaches say there never is a cinch or an easy job.

The Jacksonville fans can expect to see a one-two punch by the Bulldogs if this week's work on the running attack is fruitful. Coach Butts described the running against Alabama as "terrible in every sense of the word." Two long scrimmages this week should prove beneficial.

Paradoxical as it may sound, the weakness of the Georgia running attack has been responsible partly for the poor pass protection at times this fall. Opposing linemen have been able to concentrate more on breaking through to grab Coach Butts described the running against Alabama as "terrible in every sense of the word." And it looks as if Tampa will come up with the winningest team in the nation for the Clear Bowl. Missouri Valley, riding a 38-game victory streak, is the number one choice of the Tampa committee at present. Scrapper Moore's Chattanooga team has been mentioned as the other team.

College football is packing 'em in this season in greater numbers. Statistics, released yesterday, show that the average attendance for major games this year is 25,546.

Navy, convinced by Truman that anything can happen, has hopes of upsetting mighty Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday. The upset belief is confined to the Navy squad, however. Despite the fact, the Middles haven't won a game this season they remain a top drawing for his play against Duke last attraction. A sellout crowd of week.

'Tech'll Play Anybody, Any Time'—Bobby Dodd

Condensed From AP, UP, INS Wire Reports.

"We'll play anybody, anywhere, any time," said Bobby Dodd, the head man at Georgia Tech yesterday. Dodd made the statement for the benefit of the few fans who misunderstood his jestful remark about being afraid to play North Carolina. Dodd added that the only team he was worried about right now is Tennessee, the Jackets' foe at Grant Field tomorrow.

Speaking of bowls, Sul Ross, the only undefeated, untied team in the Southwest, has put itself on the New Year's market. The Alpine, Texas, eleven has already been approached by the Ralston and Salad Bowl officials.

4,500 See Bass Rip O'Keefe, 33-0

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

The luck of the O'Keefe Irish was all bad last night. The worst luck they had was having Bass High on their schedule the night the Blue Wave rolled at its mightiest. The net result was that the Wave inundated the charges of Hank Langston, 33-0, before 4,500 unbelieving spectators at Grady Stadium.

Swede Phillips' in-and-out team, which had two of its brightest stars sitting disconsolately on the bench with injuries, never gave the "Comeback Kids" a chance to do any coming back last night. Bobby Keel and George Burns, two speedsters built like fireplugs, thrashed their way 225 yards overland and the whole Bass ground offensive netted 319 yards.

The O'Keefe ground game was held to a mere 35 yards on terra firma, and when the Irish tried to open up with their vaunted aerial attack it only backfired in their faces, the Wave defenders latching onto three for interceptions. The four passes the losers did complete netted only a harmless 44 yards.

The savagely charging Bass rush line, led into battle by Bobby Luther, Calvin Abernathy, Boyd Odum, Earl (Punky) Wallis, Jim Robertson and Max Palmer, played its finest game. Wallis blocked a punt that led to the third Bass touchdown. Max Palmer fell on that one. Luther made tackle after tackle behind the line of scrimmage, and Abernathy and Don Swords did some magnificent downfield blocking.

Jimmy Ransbotham and Sonny Scott, who spelled the injured Marshall Akers at quarterback, did some good piskin totting themselves, but it was Keel and Burns who were in the driver's seat throughout until late in the game when Coach Phillips let every man on the bench play. Akers got in only to try for three extra points, all of which he booted, and injured Center Jim Waterhouse appeared only briefly.

Keel, who peeled off 122 yards in 13 tries for a 9.3-yard average, was perhaps the best defender of them all from his line-backing position. Burns rolled up 103 yards rushing in 14 totes for 7.3 yards average. Sub Back Bob Reed, who has been playing great ball in recent games, came up with an important fumble recovery. Selman Glover, Keel and Ransbotham made the pass interceptions. Tackle Marion Skinner, who coiled around one Bass fumble and played well on defense, was about all the Irish supporters had to crow over.

Burns' 33-yard romp early in the first quarter went for naught when the Irish held and took over 15 yards from pay dirt, but the next time the Wave got possession they ripped 45 yards on five plays for a 6.0 lead. Burns' 30-yard burst to the Irish 15 set it up. Keel banged for 10 yards on two tries and Burns went across from five yards out—near the end of the stanza.

It was early in the second period when Ransbotham returned Claude Gilstrap's punt seven yards to the Bass 32, and on the next play Keel zipped through right tackle, reversed his field and high-tailed it 68 yards for the second score as Abernathy and Swords levelled the last two defenders with teeth-rattling blocks. Joe Shaw missed the extra point and the count remained 12-0 until half time.

The Wave surged to the 17 before losing the ball early in the third chapter, and moments later Wallis blocked Jack Powell's punt and Max Palmer dropped on it for Bass at the Irish 17. Burns got three before Ransbotham swirled through left tackle, cut across field

Stewart Maiden, Golf Pro, Dies

By BET PRATHER

Stewart Maiden, the quiet little Scot who came to Atlanta 40 years ago from his native Carnoustie to assume the job as professional at the Atlanta Athletic Club's East Lake course and then gained nationwide fame as teacher of such famous stars of the fairways as Alexa Sterling, Perry Adair and Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., is dead.

Stewart, who was presently employed as professional at the new Peachtree Golf Club, which is headed by Bobby Jones, died yesterday morning at a private hospital after suffering a stroke three weeks ago. The stroke had rendered him partially paralyzed and unconscious most of the time until his death. Maiden died on the same floor of the hospital where Bob Jones is now recovering from a recent operation upon his neck.

Maiden succeeded his brother, Jimmy Maiden, and his brother-in-law, Alex Smith, one of the great professionals of the game, at East Lake around 1908. During the span between 1910 and 1920 he taught and developed Alexa Sterling, the red-headed Atlantan who three times won the U. S. Women's National; Perry Adair, twice winner of the Southern amateur, and the one and only Robert Tyre Jones, Jr., who later went on to register what was regarded as the impossible—victories in the U. S. Amateur, U. S. Open, British Amateur and British Open in the same year. That was in 1930.

His fame as a developer of champions earned him the title of "Kiltie, the King-Maker." Until his death, he was known to his close friends as "Kiltie." Never one to waste words, he probably could give his pupils more information in the fewest number of words than any golf instructor of our time.

Stewart was away from East Lake during the early twenties, returned for a span and then went to New York where he conducted a golf studio in the Grand and his last.

Central Building. He returned to Atlanta upon opening the new Peachtree Golf Club where he was again teamed with his most famous pupil.

The entire 18 holes at this club have not been opened, but Stewart was happy and busy doing the things he liked best—teaching golf—until his recent illness. He lived at the club.

He is survived by his brother, Jimmy, professional at the Nassau Country Club, and two daughters.

Irish Backs Ready For Hoosier Tilt

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(P)—Notre Dame Halfbacks Emil Sitko, Larry Coutre and Billy Gay and Fullback Mike Swistowicz were certified yesterday as ready for the Indiana game Saturday.

Still classed as doubtful were Guards Bill Fischer and Jim Dailer, Halfback Terry Brennan and Center Jerry Groom.

The only player out of the game for sure is Guard Bob Lally, who lost four teeth in the Navy game. The Irish went easy on contact work, but ran through a long dummy scrimmage.

Failed Only Twice

Hank Greenberg played only two full seasons in the major leagues in which he failed to drive in more than 100 runs—his first in more than 100 runs and his last.

DEATH SEPARATES FAMOUS PAIR—Stewart Maiden, left, the little Scot whose expert teaching enabled Bob Jones, Jr., right, to become the world's greatest golfer, died yesterday in a private hospital after a three-week illness. This picture was made several months ago at the time Maiden was announced as professional at the new Peachtree Golf Club.

Blanchard, one of Army's greatest stars, said he hadn't seen Army will come to New York to Army play since he left school, day.

Council Plans Rookie Bonus Limit of $6,000

CINCINNATI — (P) — A uniform ceiling of $6,000 on all bonus payments to players starting their first year of professional baseball was proposed yesterday at a meeting of the Executive Councils of minor and major league leagues. Walter Mulbry, Secretary to Commissioner A. B. Chandler, explained, however, that the proposal would have no effect on the higher bonuses now paid by major league clubs to some players. When those greater amounts are paid the player is designated as "bonus player" and he is subject to draft.

The regular bonus payments now range from $800 in Class D leagues to $6,000 in the majors. Mulbry said the proposal for the uniform bonus would have to be approved by the minors at their meeting next month and then by the joint major league gathering.

Today's session here will be devoted to a meeting of the Major League Executive Council at which proposed rules changes are to be discussed and plans made for next month's major league meeting in Chicago.

Marist Seeks Revenge; Bulldogs Meet Elephants

Three powerful out-of-town teams make appearances in a trio of the five high school games to be featured on the Greater Atlanta agenda here tonight, with Marist seeking to avenge a 33-13 defeat at the hands of Knoxville Central High and at the same time practically assure itself of an unbeaten regular season in the highlight fray at Ponce de Leon Park.

Gainesville's Class A powerhouse will find a host North Fulton eleven no part of a pushover out at Dykes Field in Buckhead, and Georgia Military Academy, fresh from its first win of the year, will try to take the measure of invading Morgan School, of Petersburg, Tenn., at GMA.

Roosevelt High, coddling just a smidgen of a chance to gain a tie for the City League championship, will try to get back on Victory Boulevard at Grady Stadium against Grady's Gray Knights.

The only other tilt on the local card will pit Fulton and Russell, two teams who have taken their lumps lately after fine starts. Russell's East Point field will be the site and 8 o'clock the hour, the starting time holding good for all the other melees, too.

Many ears will be tuned to Augusta also as Smith High, now threatening to wage battle with Brown for the City League title, goes outside its region to take on Roy Rollins' Richmond Academy and its great fullback, Derwent Langley. Smith can counter with one just as good in Conrad Moon, who will get able assistance from Grady Waters and Glenn Mitchell plus a rock ribbed line.

Hapeville's up-and-coming Hornets may prove a stumbling block for Jim Pressley's high-geared Blue Devils machine at Marietta, and College Park invades Cedar-town where Coach Jim Luck has one of the best Class A outfits in the State.

Brown, Decatur and West Fulton will be idle this weekend and Murphy will not tackle the Blue Jackets in Savannah until Saturday night.

Other games involving Class AA teams in the State include Waycross vs. Glynn Academy at Brunswick; Jordan vs. Boys Catholic at Augusta; Benedictine vs. Lanier, at Macon, Baker Village, at Columbus; Porter Military Academy vs. Commercial, at Savannah; Rockmart at Rome, Rossville at LaFayette and Moultrie at Albany. Riverdale will be at Castle Heights and Darlington at McCallie for Mid-South Conference frays.

Shorty Doyal's Marist boys, with six wins and a tie in seven games, have good reason to seek revenge from Knoxville Central, having been thrashed 33-17 in Knoxville last year. The invading Bobcats are coached by Nathan (Red) Eubanks, one-time All-Southern guard at Georgia. His charges bowed 26-12 to Morristown last week, marking their fourth defeat in six starts in a very tough league.

Wingback and Captain Bob Livingston is the only starter back from last season's powerhouse, but he is getting able assistance from Tailback Jack Draper and Fullback Luke Householder. The Bobcats operate from the Tennessee-style, single wingback attack.

Weddington Kelley's North Fulton Bulldogs have been sensational in recent games, having bowled over favored Rome, 25-19, in their most recent upset win. Drane Watson's Red Elephants, with Jackie Roberts and Marvin Free in the saddle, will be favored but Gordon Malloy, Emory Jenks, Art Holbrook and company could pull another surprise.

GMA has a new sensation in Sam Oosterhout, who sparked four touchdown drives and tallied

Louisville Wins
LOUISVILLE — The Louisville High Junior Varsity routed Tennessee's Bee team, 59-0, here yesterday afternoon. Drew Walters scampered 50 yards for one score, and Jimmy Armstrong raced 30 for another touchdown.

Elsewhere in Class A play, Gainesville, fresh from a 33-0 conquest of Russell, invades North Fulton for another tilt with a Class AA team. The game is one of the "toss-up" variety, although Jackie Roberts and Company seem to have hit a peak following disappointing showings against Griffin and Decatur.

Decatur, another Region Four contender, is idle following its upset by Griffin last week, while the Gold Wave is host to Class B Winder. West Fulton at Canton, McHenry at Cartersville, Fulton at Russell and Rome at Rockmart round out the slate for tonight.

Class B takes the spotlight for the section as two undefeated teams, Monroe and Hartwell, clash at Monroe for the leadership in Region Four. Mike Castronisi' Hartwell crew has trimmed Eastonolee, Winder, Tawonia, Madison, Greensboro, Clarksville and Washington, Ga., in rapid succession, but faces far its toughest hurdle of the season in the Purple Hurricane. Bill Davies, in his freshman coaching season, has guided the Hurricane to victories over Jefferson, Greensboro, Madison, Buford, Thomson and Commerce.

The Region's other leader, Toccoa, should win over Buford with ease, and should come into the Nov. 19 battle with Hartwell still undefeated in loop action. Monroe doesn't play Toccoa this year.

Elsewhere among the B teams, Ellijay meets Cornelia, Gordon Lee steps up to battle Summerville, Bremen faces Douglasville. Newnan meets Carrollton, Dallas clashes with Manchester, Jackson vies with Villa Rica, undefeated West Point plays Camp Hill, Ala.; Clarksville opposes Jefferson. Commerce meets Campbell, Tawonia is favored over Elberton. Greensboro tangles with Wrens. Warrenton battles Madison and Thomson opposes Lincoln.

In Class C action, Caloun and Trion meet in the feature, with Ken Moore, the State's leading scorer, seeking to pace his mates to another win. Other games include Eatonton-Jonesboro, Monticello - Forsyth, Washington - Gray and Tallapoosa-Austell.

VOL PASSER SET FOR TECH—J. B. Proctor, rated by his coach, Bob Neyland, as one of the SEC's top backs, will lead the Tennessee attack against Georgia Tech here tomorrow afternoon. Although hampered by injuries for part of the season, the Vol tailback has been his team's chief threat this year. The Jackets are favored to win and move one step closer to an undefeated season.

Larry Dodd's Russell team is crippled, too, after being battered by Smith, West Fulton, Decatur and Gainesville on successive weekends, but Fulton has found the going almost equally rough in falling before Marietta, Dalton and Hapeville. Both Russell and Fulton had exceptionally good records before that, however, and both will be trying to get back in good with Lady Luck to night.

Tech-Georgia Game Is 'Crucial' One Again

By JACK JACKSON

Barring further mishaps, the Southeastern Conference championship and the choice of bowl bids will be at stake when Georgia Tech and Georgia clash at Athens three weeks hence in another renewal of a series which has seen one or both of these prizes in the balance for six of the past nine games.

It's a safe bet that no other annual game in the Southland, or the Nation as far as that goes, has had such an important bearing on titles and postseason games. Only in 1943 and 1944, when Tech's V-12s weren't extended by the civilian Bulldogs, and in 1940, when both had only mediocre seasons, has the game failed to attract national attention.

Let's start back in 1939. The Jackets had been beaten only by Notre Dame and Duke and needed a win over their traditional rivals to get a tie with Tennessee for the loop crown and an Orange Bowl bid. They won, 13-0, after a bitter struggle, and went on to defeat Missouri in Miami, 21-7.

In 1941, Georgia was on the spot. Tech had won only three of its first eight games, and the Bulldogs were close to their first bowl bid. Frank Sinkwich paced them to a 21-0 win here in Atlanta and from there Georgia went on to topple TCU, 40-26, in that same Orange Bowl.

The 1942 game had the most at stake. Undeclared Tech and Georgia, beaten only by Auburn in the upset of the season, met in Athens with the Rose Bowl bid, then the top prize for a Dixie team, at stake, plus the league title. Sinkwich again plagued the Jackets, along with a fleet sophomore named Charley Trippi, and Georgia won, 34-0. The Bulldogs beat UCLA, 9-0, in the Rose Bowl, and Tech lost a 14-7 decision to Texas in Dallas' Cotton Bowl.

After a two-year lull, the chips were down next in 1945, with Tech again given a chance to play the "spoilers" role. Trippi was back from the wars and Georgia, topped by only LSU and Alabama, had a chance for its third post-season invitation. The Bulldogs won, 33-0, and on the strength of such a decisive win moved into the Oil Bowl, for a 20-6 conquest of Tulsa.

Georgia's first chance at an undefeated season in the modern era was at stake in 1946, and Trippi and Company rolled over the Jackets, 35-7. Georgia earned a tie for the loop crown by virtue of the win, and the Sugar Bowl bid. Tech, which had lost only to Tennessee prior to the game, went on to rout St. Mary's, 41-19, in the Oil Bowl.

And last season. Although Tech was already signed for the Orange Bowl, the Bulldogs' bid to Jacksonville's Gator Bowl depended on a good showing against the Jackets. The 0-7 loss was good enough and the Bulldogs tied Maryland, 20-20, on New Year's Day while Tech lashed Kansas, 20-14.

So, the stakes are high again this time, and the season will be made for one and marred for the other over in Sanford Stadium.

The Bowl Picture

If Tech gets by Tennessee tomorrow, and follows with wins over Alabama and Citadel, and Georgia can defeat Florida, Auburn and Furman, the SEC crown will be one objective.

The bowl picture boils down to this:

Should Tech win, capping an undefeated season, they'll probably face North Carolina in New Orleans' Sugar Bowl. Should they lose, their record will warrant serious consideration from Miami and Dallas.

Should Georgia win, the Bulldogs will probably play in the Orange Bowl, for, although Sugar Bowl officials are still interested in the Bulldogs and a replay with the Tarheels would be a natural, Tulane's once-beaten Greenies are anxiously waiting for a home town bid. If Tulane beats Baylor and Tech loses, Coach Henry Frka's crew will be hard to keep out. A Georgia loss in the Tech game would probably eliminate the Bulldogs from the Bowl picture.

There are a lot of ifs and buts and it may not work out that way at all, but with three weeks remaining in the season, that's the way it looks now.

Other Classics

There are some other top flight football games slated for that Nov. 27 weekend. Tulane meets its traditional foe, LSU, with the Green Wave chances at a post season game at stake.

Vandy and Tennessee tie up at Nashville and although there won't be any bids in the offing for either team, it should produce some of the season's best football. Mississippi State and Ole Miss, who always come up with a thriller, meet at Oxford.

And don't forget the Florida-Alabama game. The Gators are getting ambitious and are capable

TECH, CAROLINA SEEN AS FOES IN SUGAR BOWL

PINEHURST, N. C.—Talk in this sector is that North Carolina and Georgia Tech are almost sure to clash in the Sugar Bowl game New Year's Day . . . and one enthusiast suggests sending Carolina's offensive team there and the defensive team to another bowl . . .

Mike Korich, a deaf bowler from Los Angeles who recently rolled a couple of strings in the 700 class, has this simple explanation: "I'm lucky. I don't have to listen to advice like the other boys do."

Bobby Locke, the South African with an odd golfing style, took a lot of tournament prize money out of this country . . . But you can still get an argument as to whether he is a good roller. . . . During the last Mid-Pines Tournament, Locke toured the course with Frank Cosgrove, a resort operator whose left-handed shots are notable for an amazing slice. . . . After watching Cosgrove shoot the first four holes in par, Locke remarked: "For a man who hasn't any style, you certainly know where that ball is going." . . . Cosgrove replied blandly: "Bobby, that's just what the pros say about you."

Harbert Ties With Heafner

PINEHURST, N. C.—(P)—Good weather and consistent golf returned to Pinehurst yesterday leaving two of the outstanding favorites tied for the lead in the Forty-sixth North and South Open Golf Tournament.

And right behind them at the halfway mark of the tournament, which was running a day late because of Wednesday's heavy rains, were the players who figured to be the serious contenders and the first-day flashes who slipped back.

Two steady, long-driving veterans, Chick Harbert, of Northville, Mich., and Clayton Heafner, of Charlotte, N. C., were tied for the lead after 36 holes with totals of 141.

A single stroke behind trailed consistent Claude Harmon, of Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Sammy Sneed, the White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., slugger; Joe Taylor, of Bristol, Tenn., and Julius Boros, little Bridgeport, Conn., amateur, had 143's and Glenn Teal, of Charlotte, was next at 144.

Scores of the leaders:
Chick Harbert 88-73-141
Clayton Heafner 89-72-141
Claude Harmon 71-71-142
Sam Sneed 70-73-143
Julius Boros 68-75-143

POLLSTERS JOIN SPORTS 'EXPERTS'

They Make Dewey Same Kind of Choice As Notre Dame Over Slippery Rock

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Well, maybe the sports writers don't do so badly after all. Many a harried scribe who has been hiding in a corncrib or under the cellar stairs as a result of a backfiring prediction concerning some ball game or horse race or boxing match has been startled the last couple of days by strange, urgent voices whispering: "Move over."

The sports writers do have some new, esteemed company, for a fact, and in the future when they hazard a timid guess on the outcome of some event, and are wrong, they can point to several thousand political experts who elected Thomas E. Dewey President before the polls opened Nov. second.

"Lookit," they will say. "They didn't have to worry about the possibility of a tank job, or a phony close one to set things up for a rematch, or a bad decision. They knew both men would be in there picking out everything on the up and up."

"And what happens? They make Dewey the same kind of favorite Notre Dame would be over Slippery Rock, and he loses."

The election does show the uncertainty of any contest, at that, whether it is in politics, sports, or pie eating. The fact the political experts could be so far wrong makes the errors of the sports writers more understandable.

The difference is that when a sports contest is won by an individual or team that wasn't given an outside chance there often is the howl that the fix was on.

The recent featherweight bout in which Willie Pep lost his title to Sandy Saddler was the perfect example. Rumors that the affair would be one of those things preceded the action.

Pep, unbeaten in his class and loser in only one bout in his long career, was thoroughly whipped before being knocked out by Saddler in the fourth round, and Willie's performance lacked so much of its expected class that the skeptical immediately looked at the bout with a jaundiced eye.

It should have been a Jones Beach production instead of a local affair, and Jones Beach, the said crowd, intimating Pep couldn't have done better with a diving board.

Personally, we think the bout was absolutely on the level. And we had thought that Pep would win by six miles, too.

A man who never has been defeated in his class and who had the pride that Pep had in his title isn't going to get and give it away, and take a thorough beating in the bargain.

The cold fact seems to be that Pep, a fine champion over the years, an expert boxer and adequate puncher, had slipped farther than anyone realized.

He had been bowling over fighter after fighter, but many of these probably were licked before they got in the ring. Licked by Pep's reputation for invincibility.

He finally, when much of his speed and cleverness had left him, met an opponent in Saddler who was unfraid, and who had the physical equipment to dominate the bout. He whittled Pep around, held him with his right and lambasted him with a left, and otherwise fought in a manner which had Willie baffled.

The experts, with a few exceptions, were wrong on that one. But, as mentioned, they have plenty of company now.

UCLA Drops Senior Guard

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Thirty-seven UCLA football players will journey to Berkeley to play California Saturday, but absent from the squad for the rest of the season will be Mike Dimitro, 210, senior senior and U-Pacif. Coast Conference guard last year.

Coach Bert La Brucherie announced that Dimitro had been dropped from the squad. La Brucherie said he was not going to continue playing, and that when Mike failed to report for two practices, he assumed he was through.

Dimitro said he was surprised because he had not been named on the first team since the second game of the season, against North. He was injured in that contest and has played little since, in contrast to 292 minutes of action last year and 324 the year before.

UCLA backers professed that Dimitro's loss would not injure their already slim chances of upsetting unbeaten California. Harry Thompson, 230-pound tackle, moves over to back up Eddie Eaton at the left guard spot.

Dimitro said he will continue his studies at UCLA and aim for a professional grid career.

Mrs. Irene Bell Quits U. S. Post

Mrs. Irene L. Bell, Atlanta lawyer and Deputy U. S. District Court Clerk since 1942, has retired from her Federal post.

A familiar figure in Federal courtrooms of the Old Post Office, diminutive Mrs. Bell practiced law in Atlanta for a number of years with her husband, the late Ernest C. Bell. The Bells were said to be the first husband-and-wife team admitted to practice before the U. S. Court of Appeals.

No One Matches Children for Pain

By DORIS LOCKERMAN

The man was hurt and you could see it in his face. He leaned wearily against the telephone bracing himself against a tirade, and finally reached over and hung up the receiver. "All right, Baby," he said patiently, "I'll try to figure out what to do."

"It's my stepdaughter," he said, sounding a little punchdrunk and speaking absently as if he were alone. "I don't know what to do with her. We're crazy about the kid, and we've done everything we can for her. She used to be such a sweet little girl. I used to love to polish her white shoes on Saturday night and get up early Sunday morning to walk to Sunday School with her. Now she's gone off the deep end. Charges clothes we can't pay for... lies... talks ugly to her mother... runs around all the time... drinks a lot. We don't know where to turn."

He was a picture of misery.

The old saying, "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child," came back poignantly and there was nothing to offer him for consolation.

No grown-up can deal the body blows children can. Listen to almost every conversation and you will hear the adults talking about their children.

"Mary Jane is sick"... this thought will cut through a dialogue on politics like a shaft of reality. "I'm really worried about her. She's going through a phase of feeling sorry for herself. It's pretty bad..."

"Let me show you a color shot of my little adopted son"... a foster mother is the most determined of your friends. "He's four, you know, and so wonderful. I can say so because, as I tell him, I only picked him out!"

A man who spends his lifetime molding the personality and thoughts of his eight-year-old daughter interrupts an impromptu male discussion of a current beauty:

"I'll take my own beauty queen, thank you. She's adorable! You know, good nature is an asset like being born with a little stock of capital goods that nothing can touch, and it pays off dividends every day. Why, Harriett was simply born sweet..."

And so it goes.

While the practicing parents cogitate about their children, those who do not have them or who have reared them and sent them into the world, devote tons of energy to ways of alleviating juvenile delinquency. It is the one magic subject that whips the interest of every audience, no matter how jaded.

There really ought to be some way of letting boys and girls know they have an obligation for all this devotion. That might be a discipline in itself, knowing how beloved they are.

But it rarely happens that they understand it until they find themselves in the same spot, grieving over a wayward son or daughter, or exulting over a favored one.

It is just one of the cycles of nature.

Call Them Planovers And Save Your Time

You don't call those dabs of string beans, mashed potatoes and roast beef leftovers any more. You call them planovers and pretend you cooked too much deliberately.

In fact, cooking too much while you are about it, is one of the best ways to save time and money. Eliza Clark, Home Economics expert with Philco said here last week:

"You simply pop planovers into your deep freezer and get them out next week or next month when you need a quick meal," she said. "Practically anything will freeze well, cakes, cookies, pies, meats—almost anything except salad greens, and, of course, bananas. You still don't put bananas in the refrigerator."

Incidentally, Miss Clark has teased to add that there is a difference between the frozen storage compartment in new refrigerators and the deep freezers for sale. The former will keep frozen food, but they are not proper for freezing and processing them originally.

A deft young woman with wrapping food in freezing paper and stacking it away neatly, Miss Clark says every housewife would save hours each week by cooking double portions, and would save hundreds of dollars a year by buying when seasonal produce is plentiful (and cheap) on the market.

"Besides," she says, "You dine so much better. Who ever has the desire to make a cherry pie every time the family yearns to eat one? The smart homemakers just reach into their deep-freezers, and there the pies are, ready to eat!"

Food With a Flavor

NEW LUCITE SYLLABUB CHURN

SERVES YOU RIGHT

Lucite Syllabub Churn Is Practical and Pretty

The South, traditionally solid, is still that way—on syllabub at least. But a good way to start an argument is to claim that your recipe for syllabub is the best.

A long time favorite on Southern menus, this dessert-drink has an ancestry which predates such an All-American factor as Old Glory.

Often called the first cousin to eggnog, syllabub, according to records, came to this country from England in the early Colonial days and is best known along the Southern coast.

Syllabub cannot be made properly without a churn. The churns which have been heirloom pieces in many families for generations, are fast becoming extinct.

So now the churn has the new look but it provides the same old taste. This modern Lucite churn which is on the market now is copied from an old churn and is as practical but far prettier. With this new churn you can make syllabub by many different recipes, and even make up new ones. Use it for life and then leave it to your favorite child.

Syllabub may be served for any festive occasion. It is as traditional as turkey in many Southern families for Thanksgiving and Christmas. It rates high for New Year parties. Serve it as a drink or a dessert on any day, gala or otherwise. There are as many or more recipes for syllabub as there are for mint julep or eggnog. The following is perhaps the favorite and oldest for the South. Rum or brandy may be substituted for whiskey.

1 pint thick cream
1 pint sweet milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup bourbon (4 oz. or a little more)

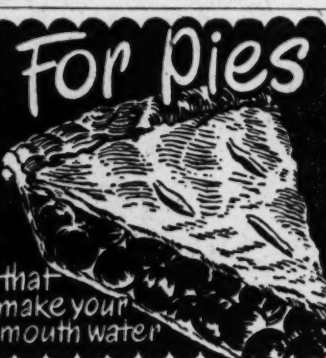

This serves 8-10 and the recipe may be doubled with good results. Mix all the ingredients together in a bowl deep enough for the froth to rise. Place churn in center of the bowl—hold churn firmly as you pump the dasher up and down with an easy, steady motion. When the top of the bowl is well covered with froth, skim off the spoon and put into tall glasses or goblets. Continue to churn, skimming off the froth periodically until the mixture is used up. Syllabub can be churned over and over again as long as the liquid lasts. It will keep in the refrigerator for a week—provided the refrigerator is locked.

Syllabub may be churned ahead of time, placed in glasses and kept cold until served. Or you may bring out your prettiest bowl to the party and churn it right on the table. It may be served with fruit cake, old-fashioned tea cakes, pound cake or angel food cake. Salted pecans, stuffed dates and crystallized fruit are also good.

The Lucite churn, which may be had in Atlanta at Rich's, is the brain child of Lucille Wilkinson of the Summertown Shop at Signal Mountain, Tenn.

Milk Is a Must

Milk contains so many important food essentials needed by the human body, there is no satisfactory substitute for it. Wise homemakers know that one quart a day for each child and one pint a day for adults is the best foundation for an adequate diet.

Come Into the Kitchen

Dear Miss Saver:
Will you please print a good recipe for a five-pound fruit cake? It is a favorite in our house and now that I have a new stove I think I can venture to make one.

MISS Z. C.

Answer: The following makes a five-pound fruit cake:
1 cup salad oil, 1 1/2 cups

Manners a la Mode

By YOLANDE GWIN

Dear Miss Gwin:
I am invited to a bridge party and don't play bridge. What is the best and most polite thing to do?

Janie.

ANSWER—The thing to do is to decline the invitation by being perfectly frank with your hostess and telling her you do not play. If you accept, and go to the party as a non-player you will break up a foursome. If your hostess knows in advance that you do not play, then she will either invite you to drop in later for tea, or tell you she will invite you to another party.

Dear Miss Gwin:
I am a freshman in high school and I want to have a date, but I don't know how to go about getting one. I am afraid the girl will refuse. What can I do?

LEWIS.

ANSWER—If you know the girl the easy and simplest thing to do is to ask her for the date. Suggest going to a movie, or the high school football game, or some other current attraction. If she refuses, don't take it personally or too seriously. There will be other times, as well as there are other girls. If you want to date the girl whom you do not know, then get a mutual friend to introduce you.

NUTRITIOUS, TOO

Frozen Food Saves Time In Kitchen

Frozen foods—the unseen maid in many homes—have three great advantages: nutrition, convenience and ease in preparation.

Take green beans, for instance. Cooked with a tender ham hock they become a main dish, good enough to place before a king, yet so inexpensive it takes its place on the family table, too. If you favor onions, add one medium size onion to this unbeatable combination.

With frozen green beans, sprinkle liberally with diced sharp cheese, place in an oven baking dish and bake for about 30 minutes. The green bean casserole comes in handy when you're planning one of those complete "free-from-the-kitchen" oven meals for your family.

Vegetables are a must on every menu, so next time cook the green beans as directed on the package and when they are done and ready to serve, add mushrooms and sour cream.

A good way to encourage the children to eat more vegetables, green bean salad is a sure winner. Mix one package of the beans with one-half cup thinly sliced celery and marinate with a spicy French dressing. Chill and serve on crisp greens. For a delicious topping use mayonnaise seasoned with a little prepared mustard.

Adding celery and onions to beans when you cook them, adding butter and serving, makes the whole family ready for this bean sensation.

Frozen desserts run vegetables a close second as family favorites. Strawberry Heaven is not too expensive and is easy to prepare. Whip the sweetened frozen strawberries into vanilla ice cream until the mixture is smooth and creamy. Chill for about an hour before serving.

If you have to outwit the children to get them to eat their breakfast, here's a good way to jog those lagging appetites. Make a game of it by hiding some frozen strawberries near the bottom of the cereal dish.

The next time you feel in a pie-making mood, why not try something like strawberry and fresh peach pie? Just use your favorite pastry and fruit pie recipe, substituting half strawberries and half peaches. Make allowances, however, on the sugar for some varieties of frozen fruit have sugar added. For an extra treat, serve this tasty pie with whipped cream or ice cream.

Good Taste Found in Mexican Dishes

By SALLY SAVER

Good taste—for food, that is—is what the family wants.

So like that heroic General of the Southland, Nathan Bedford Forrest, whose statement to "get there fustest with the mostest," the housekeeper who gets there fustest with the mostest variety is that certain party in every family who gets the votes.

Food that is appetizing as well as exotic will add interest to the never ending routine of meal planning. Dishes that provide that piquant flavor and aroma are the answer and the answer could not be better described than in the use of chili and tamales. It has often been said that in lieu of a visit to another country, the preparation and eating of its favorite foods can make its atmosphere one's own.

The glamour and romance of old Mexico can be right in your own kitchen in the many uses of these two products. In addition, dishes which have won fame and comment have that certain something added in the form of Mexican or chili powder, which for seasoning has the magic of witchcraft, as well as the zest and sought after "good taste" of a meal.

Tamales with chili gravy can be served in combination with a number of dishes. For a Dutch lunch serve it with cold cuts, pickles etc. Tamale loaf or pie is tempting as well as tasty. It is made this way: alternate layers of tamales and chili con carne without beans, cover with cheese, bake 15 minutes in moderate oven. Tamales with melted cheese on toast, and tamales with baked beans, both make pleasing and tasty dishes.

Chili con carne plain without beans may be served in cooked spaghetti. Sprinkle it with grated cheese and chopped onion, and heat thoroughly in an oven and serve. Another good way is to serve it on boiled rice, while still another which adds variety is served on scrambled eggs. A casserole of chili con carne with grated cheese, when served on another sure winner.

With beans, chili con carne, is an appetizing, quickly prepared meal for children. It can also be served on rice or spaghetti as well as on tamales. With the latter combination, a quickie meal with no regrets for the man who came to dinner.

APPETIZING CHILI AND TAMALES FOR QUICK MEAL

Miss Miriam Gay, of WCON's Staff, Takes Time Out to Prepare a Savory Mexican Dinner.

The following are Mexican recipes which can be made with success.

Chili con Carne (Mexican Meat Stew)
1 qt. salted water
1 cup diced potatoes
1 cup corn
1 onion sliced
1 can chili con carne
Cook potatoes in salted water about 10 minutes; add corn, onion and contents of can of chili and simmer until vegetables are tender and gravy is heavy. Yield: 12 servings.

Okra y Tomatoes (Okra and Tomatoes)
1 onion sliced
2 tablespoons fat
1 pound okra
No. 2 can tomatoes
2 teaspoons salt
1 tablespoon Mexican or chili powder.

Saute onion in fat until tender; add okra and continue cooking until onion is golden brown in color, about three minutes. Add tomatoes, seasonings and allow to simmer until okra is tender and mixture thickens, adding water as necessary. Green pepper and a little garlic may be added if desired. Yield: 3 servings.

Onion for Flavor

Serve creamed chipped beef, flavored with a little grated onion, over squares of freshly baked hot cornbread; garnish with chopped parsley or a spray of watercress.

Wilson's Weekly Bulletin

from the Rector Kitchens

Good Food Can Be Very Simple

Simple foods are always popular and I was not at all surprised to find a famous Tea Room listing among their "Three Famous Foods" a casserole of Corned Beef Hash with a "Very Special Sauce."

In spite of its 90¢ portion cost, many folks were ordering it, for it was really very good; so was the sauce! As we all ate our hash and liked it, I could not help but think how that 90¢ could get not only two cans of Wilson's Certified meaty and mighty good Corned Beef Hash and all the sauce fixin's to make six folks just as happy, but best of all it would take only two turns of the wrist in the kitchen to do it!

Rector Kitchens at Work

You'll never believe how simple and easy the duplication is until you've tried today's recipe. You will want to serve this tasty dish over and over again. It's a famous food and everybody loves it, besides it's a quickie; so cook with love it!

The "very special sauce" is just a quick trick with Cream Cheese. Though it's a wonderful sauce and mighty wholesome eating, you could for economy reasons, omit it if you care to. The casserole of hash is mellow, moist and mighty good alone if it's Wilson's Certified.

Famous Corned Beef Hash Casserole with Sauce (Clip and File)

Be an salad casserole or three individual ones (4 inch size) or four, if of 3 inch size, place:

1 can Wilson's Certified Corned Beef Hash and
1/4 cup cream or evaporated milk, undiluted

Mix, then sprinkle over the top a mixture of:
2 tablespoons Wilson's CLEARBROOK Butter or Certified Margarine, melted and
1/4 cup fine dry breadcrumbs

Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 15 minutes. Garnish hash with parsley and stuffed olive or a half hard-boiled egg white filled with the sauce. Serve to three or four accompanied with a chilled salad of shredded raw carrots and cut up raisins moistened with Wilson's Mayonnaise and then arranged in a crisp, frilly lettuce cup.

VERY SPECIAL SAUCE

Mix together to make a smooth sauce:
1 1/2 cups (14 pkg.) Cream Cheese
1 tablespoon cream or evaporated milk undiluted and
1/4 tablespoon horseradish juice

You get the juice by squeezing the pulp out of a spoonful of bottled horseradish. The pulp is objectionable only because it makes the sauce seem lumpy if added. Serve sauce chilled, in an emptied hard-boiled Wilson's CLEARBROOK egg white or petite paper ramekin.

This hash casserole with salad, milk and cream makes a fine meal!

Dying Doctor Dictated Heart Operation Paper

CHARLESTON, S. C. (INS)—Intimate friends of the late Dr. Horace G. Smith, Jr., disclosed tonight how the noted heart specialist devoted the last hours of life to his profession.

Dr. Smith, aware that death was imminent, dictated a six-page addition to a paper he was scheduled to deliver at Miami Oct. 25. The paper was designed to inform other physicians about a heart valve operation that the young surgeon had perfected.

A victim of the same heart ailment that the operation was designed to cure, Dr. Smith died before he could undergo such surgical treatment.

His paper, however, was read before the American Association of Chest Surgeons in convention at Miami. Four days later Dr. Smith died.

His friends said that he laboriously dictated the final six pages to his assistant, Dr. John Stallworth, of Charleston, who delivered the paper at Miami.

They said that Dr. Smith first signed so that he could appear personally at Miami. Instead, his ailment grew worse and, according to his friends, the surgeon felt, even as he dictated to Dr. Stallworth, that he would not live.

Dr. Stallworth, assistant resident in surgery at Charleston's Roper Hospital, said the contents

1/4 cup Grated Cheese

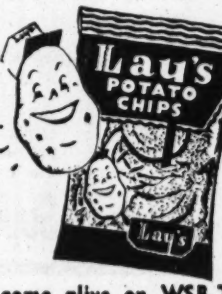

Melt butter in saucepan and add onion and parsley. Cook five minutes and add flour. Stir until smooth. Then add milk, cooking slowly until smooth, and season with salt and pepper. Add the flaked fish, mixing well. Butter some small ramekins or baking cups and fill with this mixture. Cover top with bread crumbs. Sprinkle with grated cheese and dot with bits of butter. Brown quickly in hot oven (375° F.) and serve hot. Serves 4.

7C P 7S P

I have frequently deplored the fact that I have been unable to measure degrees of guilt. If I were I could satisfy more of my readers, who from time to time write to seek vindication or to find indictments against their partners. A common form of the query is "Who was more to blame?" The above hand came to me with such a request.

The letter obviously was written by South, for he wished me to point the finger of guilt at North for responding with 2 Spades, rather than 2 no Trump. As soon as South heard this encouraging response, he went straightway to 7 no Trump, which of course he was unable to fulfill. He contended that North should not have made a positive response, though he was willing to accept part of the blame for his undue aggressiveness.

Whether or not North should respond positively depends on your philosophy of the game. According to my lights, North has a good hand when partner makes a demand bid and it is my policy to bid two Spades with that type of holding. It is my practice to show a reasonably good 5 card suit at the same level if the hand contains a full high card trick. A reasonably good five card suit has been defined as one headed by at least Q-J. If the object is raised on the ground that North has only Q-10-9, it is rather in the nature of splitting hairs. Furthermore the North hand contains more than one honor trick so a little leeway should be permitted on that account.

There is a large group of players who operate under the belief that 1 1/2 honor tricks are required to make a positive response. To this view I definitely do not subscribe.

But even if North did have 1 1/2 honor tricks a contract of 7 no trump would not necessarily be sound. Suppose for example North's response had been made on the following holding:

S-K-Q-6-4-2 H-K-J-10 D-9-6-4-2 C-3

This hand contains two honor tricks, yet the odds are at least two to one against fulfilling a grand slam contract. It would require a 3-3 break in Spades which is very considerably against the odds.

After hearing the positive response of 2 Spades, South should not hurry matters but should allow space for further conversation. Since the opening two bid is forcing to game it is enough for him to bid merely 2 no trump at this point and await partner's further pleasure, intending ultimately to bid at least 6 no trump, or 7 if partner indicates a solid Spade suit or Club support, in which case a grand slam in Clubs would be a bright prospect.

HAPEVILLE AREA SCOURED

'Smoke-Colored' Cat Disappears From Plane

By CELESTINE SIBLEY

A cosmopolitan feline with some experience in Hollywood and a total of 12 years of living and 310 kittens to her credit, became the object of a widespread cat hunt in Hapeville and adjacent swamps and woodlands yesterday.

The cat is "Princess," 12-year-old pet of Mrs. Isabelle Deane, of Orlando, Fla., and she deplaned and decrated at the Municipal Airport Oct. 25, and has not been seen since.

"Princess" was on her way from Detroit, the Deanes' former home, to join them in Orlando, where they recently moved. She changed planes in Atlanta. A freight handler for Eastern Airlines reported that he felt "something moving around in the crate and heard her meow" at 1:58 a. m. but when they prepared to load the plane for Orlando the crate was empty.

Mrs. Deane, a widow, stared out over marshlands and weeds bordering the municipal airport. "I know there are folks who would think it silly to be so crazy about a cat," she said, swallowing hard. "But I can't help it! She's our cat and we love her!"

The children around Hapeville and several dog owners don't think Mrs. Deane is "silly" because she has offered a $50 reward for the person who finds her cat. They are out trying to earn the reward.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Deane gave up a job running a tourist court in Orlando to come to Atlanta and personally direct the search.

Temporarily Mrs. Deane may be reached at 1307 East Mercer St., in Hapeville or Calhoun 5036. When last seen the cat was wearing a "smoke-colored" long-haired fur coat with patches of bare skin over her eyes from unsuccessful run-ins with dogs. Her eyes are also gray and she has but about two good teeth left, Mrs. Deane said.

Mix Honey,
Bright Ideas
For Snacks

If you want to establish yourself as a honey of a swell hostess, all it will take is a few bright ideas, and a pantry filled with snacks and honey.

Honey is palatable, energy-producing and has varied uses. Its flavor and aroma depend largely upon the blossoms from which the nectar is obtained. It is perfectly correct therefore to speak of brasswood honey, fruit blossom honey, buckwheat honey, etc.

Listed below are a few simple and easy recipes for preparing tasty drinks and sandwiches.

CREAM CHEESE FILLING. Soften cream cheese with enough honey to spread well. Add chopped raisins or nuts.

HONEY BUTTER. Cream one-fourth cup butter. Add one-fourth to one-half cup honey gradually, creaming mixture well after each addition of honey.

HONEY-PEANUT BUTTER FILLING. Make honey-peanut butter by combining equal parts of honey butter and peanut butter.

HONEY EGGNOG. Beat two eggs well, gradually add three tablespoons honey and two cups of milk. Blend thoroughly. Sprinkle with a few grains nutmeg and serve immediately.

HONEY MOUSSE. Four eggs one pint cream, one cup hot delicately flavored honey. Beat the eggs slightly and slowly pour over them the hot honey. Cook until the mixture thickens. When it is cool, add the cream, whipped. Put the mixture into a mould, pack in salt and ice, and let stand for three to four hours.

HONEY CRUNCH CANDY. One half cup honey, one fourth cup sugar, one half teaspoon salt, one half tablespoon butter, six cups corn flakes. Combine honey, sugar and salt and cook 10 minutes, or until a small amount of syrup forms a firm ball in cold water (246 degrees F.). Add butter. Add cereal and honey mixture, stirring lightly to coat flakes. Shape mixture into small balls and serve as either cookies or candy.

Custard With Coconut

Use coconut as a topping for baked custards, muffins, cup cakes, coffee cake, lemon pie; it will add flavor and interest to an everyday dessert.

Thanksgiving Set For 50 at Grady

Eleven democratic little Brownies are going to make Thanksgiving dinner a bright occasion for some 50 Negro children at Grady Hospital this year.

As their Thanksgiving project, members of Brownie Troop 152 are making colorful tray decorations which they will deliver personally to the children in Grady's Negro ward the day before Thanksgiving.

Troop 152 is composed of fourth grade students from E. Rivers School. Members are Judy Kay Brown, Katharine Eisenhart, Dorothy Marie Evans, Carrie Lee Jacobs, Marsha Krugman, Anne McCart, Margaret Nettles, Jane Oliver, Carol Sando, Gloria Stanley, and Joyce Whitsell. Mrs. John L. Jacobs is their leader, and Mrs. Louisa Eisenhart is co-leader.
